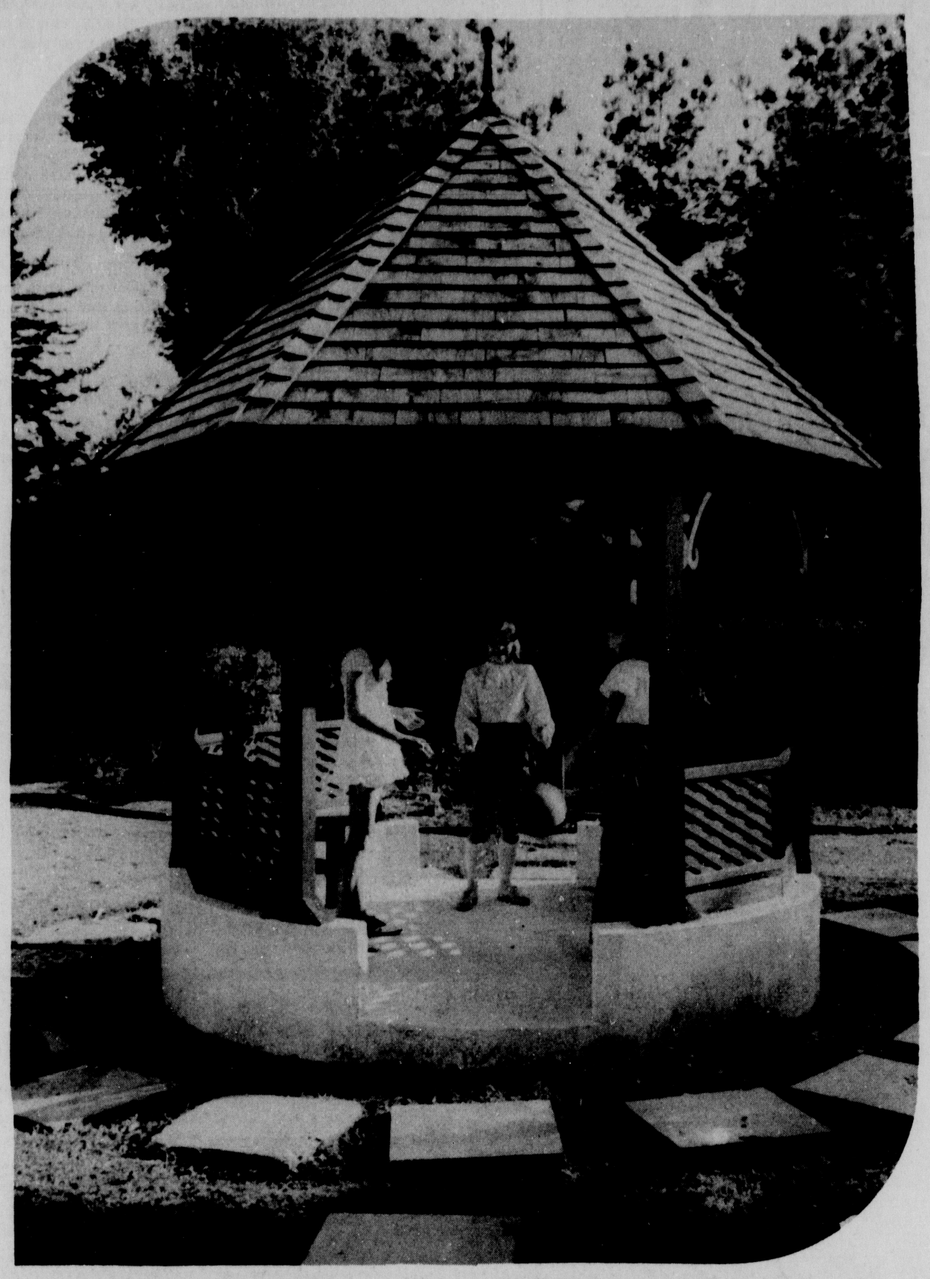
Fun In The Round



A Gazebo built early this summer on the back lawn of the home of Mr. and Mrs. Don Kellett, 30 Green Meadows, has brought enjoyment to neighborhood children and grownups. The idea for the structure came to Mrs. Kellett when she saw a picture of one in a magazine. Kellett drew plans and assisted in the construction of the all-weather structure that can seat up to 10. At play with a basketball are, Tonya, center, daughter of the Kelletts, and left, Janie McCord, and her sister, Cindy.

Grievances Aired

School Calm, 28 Jailed

Calm was restored to Sikeston high school this morning but 28 black students remain in jail as a result of yesterday's disturbances.

A series of sporadic sit-ins at the school erupted in violence yesterday but today blacks and whites sat together with no visible signs of tension.

School officials said they are prepared for any disruption of classes but said they fear none.

The 28 black high school students were jailed after a two - hour long confrontation with law enforcement officers at the school and downtown.

Four are being held in the city jail. The others were transferred to Mississippi county jail in Charleston Thursday afternoon.

The 28, 11 juveniles and 17 adults, were arrested when police and students clashed in a series of disturbances following a high school class boycott by blacks Thursday morning. They were charged on two counts of disturbing the peace and unlawful assembly.

Prosecutor Tom Gilmore said this morning that bond has been set at $200 on each of the misdemeanor charges and $500 on two felony charges of striking a police officer.

Those adult students arrested for peace disturbance and unlawful assembly were Noval Lee Patterson, Gwendolyn Thomas, Denise Yvonne Sumlin, Bernice Alexas Richards, Glenda Jean Carter, Tommy Lee Green, Mike Edwards also known as Mike Gibson, John Thomas Yarber, Gary Gene Washington, Jake Hunt, Jerry Darnell Motton, Jeffrey Edward Hobbs and Roosevelt Jones.

Dianne Gale McCullough also was charged with resisting arrest and striking a police officer; Mose Edward Boyd was charged with resisting arrest; and Dwight Cardell Yarber has been charged with resisting arrest and striking a police officer.

Gilmore named five others who will be arrested and charged this morning with peace disturbance and unlawful assembly. They are Sherman Bond, Jessie Green, Phyllis Booth, Herman Prince and Larry Johnson.

All of those arrested were

Little Observance Of Veterans Day

Veterans organizations in Sikeston indicated Thursday they have no activities planned in observance of Veterans Day, Monday.

John Scarbrough, a member of Henry Meldrum American Legion Post 114, said the Legion had discussed a parade but had decided against it.

"We checked with the merchants and schools and found that most everything will be open," he said, "so we didn't feel it would be worth it."

The court house offices at Benton will be closed Monday other than circuit clerk's office. There will be a circuit court session.

Closed will be the city administration building, Sikeston post office, International Shoe Company plant, Missouri Utilities, Missouri state employment service, Missouri State Highway department offices, district welfare office, board of municipal utilities, public library, Scott county welfare office, Bank of Sikeston, First National Bank, Security Federal Savings and Loan, and Security National Bank.

The Daily Standard will be published.

Potlatch Forests Inc. and the Noranda Aluminum Inc. plant near Marston, will be open.

Scarbrough said the American Legion will observe the day by placing eight large American flags across the Legion yard.

Previously, the day set aside to honor the service of men and women during the nation's wars was Nov. 11.

The change in dates was preceded by a change in names for the holiday. Veterans Day is a successor to Armistice Day, marking the end of World War I.

A 1968 law changed the date for the observance along with other holidays with the final decision left to the individual states. Gov. Warren E. Hearnes has endorsed the Oct. 25 date.

Paul Slinkard, past state commander of the World War I Veterans Association, said the organization has no plans to observe the Monday holiday.

"We have activities planned for Armistice Day, Nov. 11," he commented, "but we don't recognize Oct. 25 as Veterans Day."

Slinkard added that if his organization was invited to participate in any activities Monday, it would be glad to do it.

Food Prices Dip Sharply

WASHINGTON (AP) — The biggest drop in food prices in four years sharply slowed September's ovsr-all rise of living costs in the first full month of President Nixon's freeze on prices and wages, the government said today.

Grocery prices fell one per cent and the decline in automobile prices also helped to hold down last month's consumer price average, said the Bureau of Labor Statistics.

The government's Consumer Price Index, measuring prices of food, clothing, housing, transportation, medical care and recreation, averaged twotenths of one per cent higher— about half the average monthly rise so far this year—the bureau said.

The reports included some price hikes from before the freeze, which began Aug. 15, and the exact effect of the freeze on over-all living prices could not be precisely measured, the report said.

The rise brought the price index up to 122.4 in September, meaning it took $12.24 last month for every $10 worth of typical family purchases in the base period four years ago.

The bureau also reported that average weekly earnings of some 45 million rank-and-file workers dropped 27 cents to $128.76 because of shorter average work week.

The average pay check was still 5.9 per cent above a year earlier, but after allowance for the 4.2 per cent rise in living costs since then, the gain in purchasing power was about 3 per cent, the bureau said.

The report said that in the third quarter of 1971 ending in September, prices rose at an annual rate of 3.3 per cent, the lowest for anv quarter since 1967 except for the first quarter of the year when mortgage interest rates dropped sharply.

Prices of fresh fruits and vegetables, eggs and coffee, dropped sharply while prices rose for processed fruits and vegetables, beef, margarine and salad oils, the bureau said.

The report said that most of the September rise in prices reflected either items that rose in price before the freeze was imposed, or was due to seasonal or other factors under which price hikes are permissible under the freeze.

As an example of prices that went up before the freeze, the bureau said it prices college tuition only once a year, in September, and it was up nearly nine per cent this year.

College tuition is exempt from the freeze.

Mortgage interest and property taxes, also exempt, went up last month.

The report added that higher prices of imported goods subject to Nixon's special 10 per cent tax surcharge went up and accounted for about one-fourth of the over-all rise in living costs last month.

Wreck Injures 2

MINER — Two Sikeston people were injured in a one-car accident four miles north of Miner Thursday.

At 11:15 a. m. on Route H, a 1970 Mercury traveling south driven by Glenda L. Evans, 34, of Sikeston, went around a curve and into a skid, the highway patrol said, and overturned in a ditch.

The driver sustained a minor knee injury and a passenger, Ernie Rister, 68, of Sikeston, sustained a minor neck injury.

Both were taken to the Missouri Delta COmmunity hospital.

Chamber Wants 40

Membership Drive Opens

ATTENDING THE CHAMBER OF COMMERCE kick - off membership drive breakfast Thursday morning were Clem Beal, left, president, and Shad Old, chairman of the membership committee.

The Chamber of Commerce annual membership drive began Thursday with a kick- off breakfast at 7 a.m. at the El Capri restaurant with 16 drive committeemen attending.

O.D. Clayton, manager of the Chamber of Commerce, said the turnout was "wonderful considering the rain." He said three or four members were brought into the Chamber after the breakfast.

The Chamber has 266 members, Clayton said, and "we hope to increase it by 35 or 40."

Shad Old, chairman of the membership committee, said the purpose of the meeting was to give committeemen information needed when making contacts and to pass out prospect cards.

"This is probably the most important drive that we have ever held from a financial standpoint," Old said. He said annual income is approximately $22,000 and it should be increased to $28,000.

Clayton said the additional $6,000 would be used for the cost of postage, telephones, stationary, and to help maintain and take care of a building the chamber might buy and furnish.

Bluff Man Dies Of Injuries

RONBAUER -- Roy E. Wyninger, 58, of Poplar Bluff, died at 1 a.m. today in Veterans hospital in Poplar Bluff from head injuries sustained in a three-vehicle collision two miles south of Rombauer on route Z.

The fatality occured, the highway patrol said, 15 miles northeast of Poplar Bluff when a southbound 1960 Rambler driven by Carl Edward Hubbard, 58, of Poplar Bluff, struck a parked 1972 back hoe on the west shoulder of the road operated by Jimmy Jay Bowling, 31, of Dudley, knocking the machine into a parked 1965 International pickup truck on the west shoulder operated by Paul Eugene Divine, 30, of Poplar Bluff.

Wyninger was a passenger in the Rambler.

Wyninger was first taken to Lucy Lee hospital.

The body was taken to Morgan Funeral Home in Puxico.

Injured in the accident and taken to Veterans hospital was Fred Joiner, 57, of Ronbauer, another passenger in the Rambler.

NO COMMON AMERICAN

I do not choose to be a comman man. It is my right to be uncommon if I can. I seek opportunity, not security. I do not wish to be a kept citizen, humbled and dulled by having the state look after me. I want to take the calculated risk; to dream and to build, to fail and to succeed. I refuse to barter incentive for a dole. I prefer the challenge of life to the guaranteed existence; the thrill of fulfillment to the stale calm of Utopia.

I will not trade freedom for beneficence nor my dignity for a handout. I will never cower before any master nor bend to any threat. It is my heritage to stand erect, proud and unafraid; to think and act for myself, to enjoy the benefits of my creations and to face the world boldly and say, "This I have done."

All this is what it means to be an American.

I don't think it would do us a bit of good to raise hell about what the Supreme Court has done to Scott County in the realignment for the new legislature. I see our number is 160. We have Scott, Mississippi and part of Stoddard. We wonder if the people will know who they belong to and who is going to represent them and if the representatives know who they belong to, who is going to vote for them and where they are going to get votes. We don't believe that the new districts in Southeast Missouri are very good. Of course, I guess the computer, which I imagine the judges used in setting the districts, didn't take into consideration the townships or counties. It just took into consideration the people. Right now we don't know whether Scott County is going to have a representative in the legislature or New Madrid County will have a representative for Mississippi County and we don't know whether Stoddard County will have a representative representing Scott County or just what it will be. Of course, if we could get the paid announcement fees from all the candidates, it won't be too bad I guess. But, I'm so damned old it doesn't make a bit of difference to me. I don't care who represents us. Nor what districts we have or what areas. It's not the idea of picking up a good representative, it's the idea of who will be the worse one and it doesn't make any difference to us because nobody that they send up there suits us anyway. Maybe they suit us sometimes and don't suit us seven times or six times or five times or ten times. So, we will meet with open hands every representative who comes in and thinks he is going to serve the public. We want to listen to him tell us how he is going to serve us.

NEEDED: HARMLESS CURB ON RIOTS

Back in the 1960s, when city ghettos were exploding like firecrackers on a string, there was a great deal of discussion about the need for developing nonlethal means of crowd control.

There were reports of work on "bean-bag" and other kinds of guns that stunned people without harming them, of substances which made the ground banana-peel slick and literally swept rioters off their feet. But except for Mace, an agent which temporarily immobilizes when sprayed directly in the face, we have not progressed beyond the traditional forms of riot control — tear gas, clubs and ... bullets.

The tragedy at Attica, in which police shot down nine of the very hostages they were storming the prison to rescue, along with 30 prisoners, is a more dramatic plea for better methods of riot control than any other event in recent history, Kent State included.

The prison corridors and grounds were saturated with tear gas, creating a foglike condition. The hostages were dressed in prisoner garb and the last time some of them had been seen was on the parapet with assigned executioners standing behind them with knives at their throats.

In such a situation, there was little time to discriminate among targets, or even to determine if it was necessary to shoot at all.

The result, as Gov. Rockefeller has said, was to make the tragedy even deeper than we had first believed.

Surely, after all the years of secret work on nerve gas, this country should have been able to develop a mildy and temporarily incapacitating gas that could be used in precisely such a situation as Attica, something that could have paralyzed or put to sleep prisoners and hostages alike.

Tear gas apparently is useless as an incapacitating agent. The police at Attica obviously did not trust its effectiveness. Bullets and buckshot, as we have seen, are all too often totally and permanently effective.

The physical power in the hands of law officers is like having a car with brakes that either lock the wheels or don't work at all. That is, the restraining force cannot be applied gradually, judiciously. It must either be used massively or not used at all.

It is unfair, to the police as well as their victims, that this is the only kind of force at their disposal.

Perhaps one of the best explanations of what is causing delays in the construction of better highways can be found in a story on "The Red — Tape Jungle ..." in a recent issue of U.S. News & World Report. It describes how centralized bureaucracy gradually strangles itself and the country on rules and paper work. A picture illustrates the theme of the story. It shows two young women standing on chairs to steady an eight-or-ten foot high pile of reports and forms that were required to start one federally aided highway project in Illinois.

The only bright spot in the story is the indication that bureaucracy may price itself out of the market. One state official says the amount Washington contributes to a local project is insufficient to cover the costs added in meeting federal requirements. Rules for federal participation with states in road projects have become so complicated that, aside from the cost, there is a growing time lag between the start of a project and the beginning of construction. In California, lead time on a federal project can run as high as 13 years - - and we have heard that in Kansas this time is running around six to nine years, too.

We suspect the day will come when people realize that centralized government and "the Red — Tape Jungle..." is not the mark of progress, but the brand of stagnation and national decline.

SIX-YEAR PRESIDENTS

"These hearings are intended to set people to thinking -- congressmen, political scientists, columnists, the public," says Peter W. Coogan, general counsel to Sen. Birch Bayh's Subcommittee on Constitutional Amendments. He was referring to hearings scheduled Oct. 28 and 29 on a proposed amendment (S J Res 77) to limit the President to a single six-year term.

Although Sen. Bayh (D Ind.) contends that the single six-year presidential term is a subject too long ignored by scholarly investigation, the issue has had a long and controversial history. Since the Constitution was adopted in 1788, nearly 160 amendments have been proposed to change the term from four to six years. The great majority of these would have made a President ineligible for re-election. Andrew Jackson, James Buchanan, Andrew Johnson, and Rutherford B. Hayes were among Presidents favoring a single six-year term. The most recent legislation affecting the Presidential term was the 22nd amendment, ratified in 1951, which limited a President to two four-year terms.

Arguments supporting the single six-year term center around the idea that too often Presidents make decisions with a view to the effect a given course of action may have on the next election. Political consequences and not statesmanship dictate too many decisions. Advocates also contend that beginning with the latter half of his second year in office, the Chief Executive spends a disproportionate and ever increasing amount of time on election strategy and mechanics. Both Congress and the public tend to dismiss many worthy programs as political ploys. If the President could not succeed himself, it is argued, people would be less likely to treat his program as partisan maneuvers.

Opponents claim that a President ineligible to run again would in effect be a lameduck from the beginning of his term, and unable to exercise the full powers of his office. They argue that following a period of crisis, the people should have the opportunity to elect the same President again. Some suggest that a single four-year term might well be sufficient. Would two extra years to implement programs make any real difference? Moreover, six years might put a strain on public patience with an unpopular President.

NEW YORK (AP) — Jumping to conclusions:

A woman would rather be slapped in public by a man than lose an argument to him in public.

Women don't mind changing their minds any more than they mind exchanging something they bought from the department store, but—they want to do the changing themselves.

A man who tries to change a woman's mind in the presence of others only makes an enemy. The old saying is still true: "A woman convinced against her will, is of the same opinion still."

When everyone else in the office is sneezing and hacking, the most unpopular worker is the one who goes around boasting that he hasn't missed a day's work with a cold in the last 25 years.

If you checked into his case, you'd probably also find he hadn't had a merit raise in that time either. But he doesn't brag about that.

Memory plays tricks on us all, but no man grows so old as to forget the full name of the girl whose initials, along with his own, he carved in a tree when he was a boy.

When a woman finds the first gray hair in her head, she never admits it even to her closest friend for at least a month. It takes her that long to get used to the shock, and during that period she is pretty snappish and hard to get along with.

When we finally elect a woman to the White House, a grateful nation ought to do something for her husband, too— such as maybe building him a more comfortable doghouse.

Our subconscious minds sometimes give us warnings. For example if you have a hard time remembering your best girl's telephone number, maybe that's a mental hint she's not the right number for you.

You can be sure a man is an old-timer if he still puts salt in his beer. Few bartenders now even keep a salt shaker on the bar.

Show me a man who really likes broccoli, and I'll show you a man who also can be talked into making a down payment on the purchase of the Brooklyn Bridge.

There are some things in life that just don't go together. Ever see a horse-faced woman wearing a pony tail?

MEDIA DISCLOSES ANOTHER COVER—UP

Hard on the heels of the "Pentagon Papers" has come the exposure of another wartime deception.

Thanks to the fearless investigative initiative of a publication called the West Virginia Hillbilly, the story of the burning of Burning Springs, Va. (Later West Virginia), by Confederate soldiers on May 9, 1863, has now come to light.

Burning Springs, then called Oiltown, was a Yankee oil field on the Little Kanawha River in the very backyard of the Confederacy. It had a population of 10 to 15 thousand souls, hundreds of wells and a normal daily inventory of 300,000 barrels of oil, worth $1.5 million.

As one of the two existing oil fields in the world in 1863, its destruction should have been the biggest news story of the day it occurred. Yet the press services reported only that the raiders had fired 'the' oil well on the Little Kanawha, as if there were just one.

As the first military oil target in the history of warfare, the raid on Burning Springs ought to rate at least footnote mention in the history books. Yet what little information is available about the episode comes from a few obscure Confederate sources, even though speculation in oil was rampant in northern cities throughout the Civil War.

Why was the news suppressed, not only during but after the war?

The press blackout on May 9, 1863, has never been explained. There were no other military events on that day comparable to the destruction of 50 per cent of the world's oil-producing capacity.

The Battle of Chancellorsville had been fought the week before. General Grant was mired in the swamps around VIcksburg. All was quiet on the Potomac.

"Someone made a serious military blunder," accuses the Hillbilly forthrightly—"a blunder that has been successfully covered up for 100 years."

But now, at long last, the whole sorry affair has been blown sky-high, and let the chips fall where they may

NO DOUBT ABOUT IT, this is the age of youth. They've revolutionized our music, art, fashions and moral concepts. One thing they haven't changed is the appeal of beautiful gemstones.

There are some 2,000 identifiable gems of which some 200 are important. But as far as today's fashion is concerned there are just 20 gems that are top favorites.

Although early man did not have modern instruments to identify gemstones, he did put them in the right "pecking" order according to their hardness, durability, sparkle. The stone age ax, for example, was made of jade, the most durable of gems.

Typically, diamonds are the hardes gem; rubies the most chemically inert, and zircons are tops in thermal resistance. Following diamonds in order of hardness are corundum (the sapphire and the ruby; the sapphire and ruby stars; the Linde synthetic stars).

Then comes alexandrite, cats eye, Linde simulated diamonds, the topaz, spinel, beryl (emerald and Linde Emerald) zircon, garnet, tourmaline, amethyst and tiger's eye quartz chalcedony (onyx, blood stone, and sard) jade, peridot, spodumene, feldspar(moonstone), opal, turquoise, lapis, coral, pearl and shell.

The hardness of gemstones has always been of interest to some companies because of the rigid industrial requirements for cutting textile thread guides, various aerospace components, jewel bearings, and other fine equipment.

For example, Union Carbide began its research in synthetic gem materials back in 1939. As a result of its synthetic sapphires and rubies, the company was able to create special maser and laser crystals for use in science and industry, medicine and space.

FARMING THE FOREST

For a number of years, a technological revolution has been taking place in the U. S. timber industry. Leading forest products companies are taking on more and more the character of agricultural operations. They look upon land and trees much as a farmer looks upon land and crops. They recognize, as has the modern farmer, that every weapon of science must be utilized to make a fixed number of acres of land produce the products needed to meet the requirements of a growing number of people. In doing this, they are forced to improve upon nature, and this is no small task.

The chief forester of one company, in announcing a new program to study the chemical composition of the soils on the company's timberlands, recently remarked, "A continuing sense of urgency is pervading the field of growing and managing timber. We are in an era where we cannot rely on the forest's developing just in its natural way. Advances in soil science and fertilizer availability mean we can take significant additional steps to intensify tree crop production and management." Another company describes how aerial fertilizing helps the forest mature 20 years faster. It notes that its foresters are doing everything they can to speed up growth without destroying the natural balance of nature. The company plans to grow 33 per cent more wood on the same land year after year in perpetuity.

Those who think of the forest products industry as an aggregation of loggers and whining saws sweeping through the mountains like a scourge are at least 50 years behind the times.

Washington-Merry-Go-Round

By Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON--Will Wilson, the cracker-barrel crimebuster, has been chased from his Justice Department job because of ties to the scandal-rocked financial empire of Texas wheeler-dealer Frank Sharp.

Now the beleaguered Wilson may find his name drawn into yet another Texas business scandal, although the former assistant attorney general vigorously denies any wrongdoing.

The second scandal involves the huge American National Insurance Company of Galveston, which has become a treasure chest of credit for Las Vegas gambling operations and a host of other questionable business propositions.

A group of disenchanted stockholders has filed multi-million dollar suits charging the men who control the company with using it as a private financial preserve.

Investigators working for the insurgent stockholders suspect that Will Wilson may have played a backstage role in the decline of the company. Here is the evidence their pre-trial investigation has uncovered:

American National is part of the well-known Moody Foundation of Texas whose trustees control the company. Until 1959, the trustees were all members of the Moody family and deadlocked two-to-two on most issues.

Wilson, then attorney general of Texas, sued the foundation to remove the trustees. The foundation then appointed three more trustees to avoid future deadlocks. Wilson approved the selections.

From then on, the Insurance Company went downhill. In early 1963, it got into a deal that proved to be of great benefit to Frank Sharp, who was then closely associated with Wilson. Wilson's term as Attorney General had expired and he was practicing law, mostly for Sharp.

A real estate firm had built some apartments in Sharp's development outside Houston using money borrowed from Sharp's bank. Along came American National and bought the mortgage from Sharp's bank.

$450,000 LOSS

A few years later, the real estate firm failed and American National took a $450,000 beating on the mortgage, a loss Sharp would have absorbed had not the insurance company got him off the hook.

During the Johnson Administration, American National's connections with Las Vegas gambling interests sparked a criminal investigation which was still in progress when Wilson took over as head of the Justice Department's criminal division under President Nixon.

Wilson denied any suggestions that he personally saw to it that the investigation came to an abrupt end.

In fact, he insists that he was interested in the case and tried to further it. "If anything had reached me on it, I would have pushed it on," he told us.

Wilson conceded there had been no indictments, nor was there any present likelihood of them.

He said he had nothing to do with the selection of the trustees of the Moody foundation, but dit intervene to break the deadlock and made no objections to the new trustees.

Further, he issisted he knew nothing of the curious real estate transaction involving American National and Frank Sharp's interests, although he was one of Sharp's principal advisers. "This is the first I've heard of this at all, Wilson said.

Footnote: The insurgent stockholders are in two groups. One is represented by Roy Cohn, the onetime protege of Sen. Joseph McCarthy, R.Wis. The other group has hired Mudge, Rose, Guthrie andAlexander, the firm of President Nixon and Attorney General John Mitchell. Needless to say, the Mudge, Rose attorneys are not voicing any suspicions of Will Wilson.

PACIFIC STORM CLOUDS

Ex-Interior Secretary Walter Hickel tells in his memoirs how Henry Kissinger downgraded Micronesia at a State Department meeting. Hickel quotes Kissinger as saying: "There are only 90,000 people out there. Who gives a damn?"

We charged in a recent report that the U.S. has botched its trusteeship of Micronesia, which includes the Pacific islands where Americans fought some of the most bitter battles of World War II. Now many of the islanders, once grateful to the U.S. for their liberation, would prefer to have the Japanese back.

Kissinger tells us he can't remember making the statement that Hickel attributes to him. It is contrary, he says, to his actual views. But it is all too typical of the who-gives--damn attitude of many officials, Republicans and Democrats alike, who have been administering Micronesia for the past 25 years.

The U.S., meanwhile has taken a sudden new interest in the Pacific islands. As the U.S. pulls back from Asia, these islands take on increasing strategic importance. Yet the neglected natives have been alienated, and the nationalism that has stirred people in other underveloped nations is now reaching Micronesia.

We have had access to some of the secret strategic studies on the Pacific islands. As far back as Jan. 11, 1968, the Central Intelligence Agency's William E. Colby warned at a strategy session that counter-insurgency could be expected in the Pacific.

Declare the secret minutes: "He mentioned that we will be facing problems in the Pacific islands within the next ten years, but that this is not an NSC-level problem yet."

He referred to the National Security Council, which helps the President prepare for crises. Today, not yet four years later, the Pacific islands are coming to the attention of the NSC.

Inside Labor

REVOLUTIONARY UNION: Peking launches violent Maoist Communist party in U.S.

WASHINGTON-- It no longer is daring to talk on the tube, in the prints or in public places of intimacies, physical, psychical or financial. But in many circles it is the mark of a dirty mind to talk of treason.

Well, there is treason and to seek it out, to identify its objectives along gory, bomb-crated paths actually is the mark of mandatory, objective journalism. And a strong reason for a powerful Subversive Activities Control Board.

Those who still confuse treason with dissent do this nation an historic injustice. They are not with it today. They are not relevant. They equate radicalism with the outmoded American Communist Party of the era when the Soviets monopolized subversion and infiltration here.

Thus, when they talk of the revolution, they pooh-pooh the C.P. and its national committee because its Presidential ticket won little over 1,000 votes in 1968.

Today, the Communist Party ticket is headed by Gus Hall and Jarvis Tyner, national chairman of the Young Workers Liberation League. And they do have swinging power in something called the National Coordinating Committee for Trade Union Action and Democracy. But this is not the revolution. This is not at all what the fight now being fought here on the Hill is about.

True, Gus Hall's C.P.-U.S.A. gives the Kremlin the chance to boast of an American section. True, the C.P. theoreticians have guided many a Black Panther. And true, I do believe, Black Pantherite Eldridge Cleaver is returning "home" from his Algerian villa and ultra-modern propaganda compound to fight new Maoist trends to preserve the revolution for the creaking "apparat" of ancient times--Soviet communism of America in the '30s, '40s and very early '50s.

But there is a new bomb set. Few know of it. For example, one of those who seem to be unaware of the upheavals right under their handsome profiles is the Junior Senator from California, John Tunney. He'd have known better if he had listened carefully to his dad. In August he attacked the new powers which the White House had given the Subversive Activities Control Board on July 2.

Sen. Tunney urged the board's abolition. He charged that it would draw the curtain of fear over the Bill of Rights. I do believe he was thinking of dissent of olden times, workers' unemployment demonstrations and animal kingdom disagreements at universities. Certainly he could not have had in mind the relevant revolt such as is planned by the only Maoist Communist Party now in the U.S. -- the Revolutionary Union (RU). Recognized, that is, in documents available to the Senator. Documents showing that Peking did the recognizing, that Peking had a good- sized delegation of RUs over the mainland early in October, and and that Peking made it possible for his delegation to sit with none other than Chou En-lai.

And that Peking then brought the RU delegation together with the New York Young Lords leader and with others including some who almost two decades ago were accused of passing classified documents to Soviet agents. One ofthese is Frank Doe, once a U.S. Treasury employe who has been in Red China for a long time (a one-man American desk.)

In that group, too, were men once in the U.S. Progressive Labor Party who were among the first to take to Harlem's streets and roof-tops towar on the police.

They were all together on Oct. 5 with Chou and old Kuo Mo-jo, vice chairman of the Standing Committee of the national People's Congress. I've watched Kuo for a long time. It is his global assignment, untouched during the lethal Cultural Revolution, to subvert nationals across the world.

I select the Revolutionary Union here because it is typical of the new "communism." It was founded early in 1968 by veteran Communist Leibel Bergman and an avowed revolutionary, Prof. H. Bruce Franklin, then of Stanford U. Bergnam then had just returned from a long and covert stay in Peking. Prof. Franklin, at the time, had been directing the activities of a campus group named after its Chinese Communist counterpart, the Peninsula Red Guard.

The RU, once basically active in the San Francisco area, now has spread clandestinely, through collectives, to the Midwest, South and East. It is violent enough, but not enough for Franklin who believes in "revolution now," tomorrow morning or sooner. Last December he split from RU and launched the Venceremos (not to be confused with the youth brigade that cut cane each summer in Cuba.)

Knowledgeable law enforcement officials characterize his new 'vanguard" as one of the most violence-prone in California.

RU's objectives are a United Front, development of a revolutionary working class unity and "leadership in the struggle to organize a new national Communist Party, based on Marxism-Leninism, Mao Tse-tung thought, which would lead to the overthrow of the U.S. government by force and violence.

Thus, they go in for "proficiency training" -- accumulation of weapons, practicing guerrilla warfare and firearms handling. In the early days of social revolution, the organizers talked of barricades (social) but now the RU talks of this "proficiency training" with deadly seriousness.

And they are not just playing Town House. So, why should there not be a Subversive Activities Control Board?

Great Cripplers---PART V

Cerebral Palsy Major Enemy Of Early Life

Cerebral Palsy Two Takes

Editor's note: One way or another, cerebral palsy affects two million or more family members nationwide. The following article, final installment of a five-part series on "The Great Cripplers," describes efforts to prevent the disease.

By FRANK CAREY
AP Science Writer

LA JOLLA, Calf. (AP) — At the University of California campus here, a researcher studies the gestation period of a variety of animals.

At the university's Berkeley campus upstate, another scientist explores the effect of air and water pollution on unborn infants.

Both work toward preventing cerebral palsy, the crippler caused by brain or other nervous system damage before birth, at delivery or early in life.

Matched against the other great cripplers—arthritis, cerebral stroke, muscular dystrophy, multiple sclerosis—cerebral palsy is the major enemy of early life.

No known cure exists for cerebral palsy, nor a knowndrug or other treatment to attack directly the disease process and reverse significantly its toll.

But an Associated Press survey shows that scientists lately have developed new, though guarded, optimism that they may be on the trail toward eventually preventing a significant number of cerebral palsy cases.

Meanwhile, much can be done to rehabilitate sufferers.

Chief hallmark of cerebral palsy is absent or impaired control of the body's voluntary muscles such as those that move the legs and arms.

Other signs include convulsive seizures, spasms, mental retardation, abnormal sensation and perception, and impairment of sight, hearing and speech.

At least 750,000 Americans, and possibly as many as one million, are victims of cerebral palsy. Of the known total, more than 250,000 suffers are under 21 and at least 25,000 babies are born with it annually.

Estimated national cost cost for care and rehabilitation is at least $500 million. "Two million or more family members share the heavy emotional and financial burdens the disease imposes," says the volunteer United Cerebral Palsy Association.

While cerebral palsy strikes early, most of its victims live normal life spans although some are confined to wheel chairs or beds or crutches.

The cause in about one-third of cerebral palsy cases is unknown, but of those known, the chief culprits are prematurity, difficulty of breathing in the newborn, complications in labor and delivery, and accidents resulting in head injuries.

Major emphasis in research programs sponsored by government and voluntary health agencies is on prevention.

That's where the researchers at UC's La Jolla and Berkeley campuses come in.

Dr. Kenneth J. Ryan, an obstetrician at La Jolla, is perhaps the leading developer of the theory that many premature births might be prevented if ways could be found to control artificially and maintain the vital hormonal relationship in the womb between mother and embryo.

Dr. Ryan ,believes the relationship may play a key role in preserving the normal 267-day gestational period of humans.

So he has been exploring the gestation period of rats, monkeys, armadillos, sows and hedgehogs. Of special interest to him are female elephants because they are able to produce offspring without special help during gestation from the male hormone progesterone, which virtually all other mammals seem to require.

At Berkeley, Dr. Eddie Wei, an environmental health psyiologist, is attempting to determine whether low doses of metals present in the environment, such as lead, mercury and manganese, might cause prenatal or post-birth nervous system diseases.

Dr. Wei stresses that no one knows yet whether nervous system hazard exists from low doses of such metals.

But he adds that high doses of the metals can be harmful. Dr. Wei noted, as an example, the mental retardation of some slum children struck by lead poisoning after nibbling chips of lead-based paint peeling from walls.

Federal and private research gains in the battle against cerebral palsy include development of:

—A highly effective vaccine against German measles, a usually mild disease but one that can cause cerebral palsy or other congenital defects in an unborn child if the motor gets it during the first three, and sometimes during the second three, months of pregnancy.

—A serum which promises to prevent many cases of cerebral palsy caused by the RH blood factor incompatibility between mother and fetus.

CAPTAIN GETS DEGREE

UNIVERSITY PARK, Pa. (AP) — Capt. Alfred F. Blair, who left college 31 years ago to join the Navy, finally got his bachelor of arts degree at Penn State.

The Pittsburgh native, now commanding officer and director of the Antisubmarine Warfare Tactical School in Norfolk, Va., took a nine-month furlough from the Navy to enroll at the Ongontz campus of the university near Philadelphia. While at sea he worked on correspondence courses and he studied languages with private tutors.

Capt. Blair, 54, said "I wanted to wrap up that college degree before all five of my children beat me to it."

Ann Landers

Wives Work To Keep Retired Husbands Busy

Dear Ann Landers: I have read in the papers about people dying from botulism after eating contaminated tuna and contaminated potato soup -- both canned. Is there any way a consumer can tell in advance whether or not food is contaminated? You explain everything in such simple language that you are positively the best source of education in the country. Please help us.---Uptight Housewife

Dear U.H.: The best advice I can offer is simply this: NEVER taste canned or smoked food which appears to be off-color or smells "peculiar." Teach your children to exerc-se this caution also. T he botulin toxin is deadly that a cupful could easily kill everyone in the United States. If the contents of a can is suspicious, don't throw it out. Take it back to the store where it was purchased and let the manager know.

Also: Do not use the contents of a can that has bulges or leaks. The contents may or may not be poisonous, but it is never worth the risk. Such cans also hould be returned to the store. And remember that proper cooking is a defense against most food poisoning. Finally, if you think you've eaten contaminated food, don't try to treat yourself. Go to the nearest hospital immediately.

Dear Ann Landers: I have never heard such stupid advice in my life as what you gave the man with the overweight wife. You said maybe HE wanted a divorce and used her fat as an excuse to unload her. Did it ever occur to you that maybe SHE wanted an excuse to drive her husband away? I assure you that is closer to the truth.

Any wife who thinks so little of her husband that she would continue to stuff herself like a pig deserves no sympathy. I have observed these horrors in the supermarket loading their carts with soft drinks, potato chips, ice cream, pies, cakes --all of the things they shouldn't have. A woman who will not give up the fun of eating rich food so she can look like a human instead of an elephant does not deserve a husband'a love.

Imagine carrying candy in her purse, like a baby with a pacifier. Disgusting! When I read that I blew up. And you come out with the absurd statement that some men love their wives in spite of their fat. How could they? --Santa Cruz

Dear Santa: They could because they attach more importance to other things, such as emotional support, intelligence, ability to communicate, dependability, devotion, and let's not forget a sense of humor and a cheerful disposition.

Dear Ann Landers: "Retired Husband In Modesto" might sound like a "Pussycat" to YOU, but I'll bet his wife has another name for him.

So he doesn't want to be a flunkey or an errand boy? Did it ever occur to him that the only way his wife can get him out from under her feet is to send him someplace?

I live in St. Petersburg, which is a haven for the retired, and we wives help each other survive by exchanging ideas on how to keep the old boy busy and out of our hair. The best plan is to give him specific responsibilities. For example: lawn or garden work, taking care of the car, vacuuming, waxing the floors, minor carpenter repairs, window washing.

Demeaning? Heavens no! It takes a big man to do little things and those "little" things can add up to a lot of help. Spread the word, Ann. --Learned In Time

Dear Learned: consider it spread.

What awaits you on the other side of the marriage veil? How can you be sure your marriage will work? Read Ann Landers' booklet, "Marriage --What To Expect." Send your request to Ann Landers in care of your newspaper enclosing 50 cents in coin, and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Sikeston Ministers Favor

Early Christian Education Start

By JUDY GAZETTE

Four Sikeston ministers were asked to comment on Christian education for youngsters. When should it begin? And what is the validity in conducting separate worship services for young people during adult worship Sunday morning?

The Rev. Durward Penry, pastor of First Christian Church, commented:

"Christian education should begin when babies first come into the world -- at home. You don't wait until a child is X number of years old to start tending to its physical needs. Neither should you wait to start tending to its spiritual needs.

"If children are brought to church as infants and grow up in that environment, there's no problem later on with the experience of being left -- such as at age three or four.

"And if the child's family attends regularly, he sees the fellowship and involvement and wantes to be a part of it. Then by the time the child is six or seven, he realizes that, in our church, being baptized is a big step toward being a part of the church body. He'll soon ask "When can I be baptized?' "

Rev. Penry explained that at age 10 or 11 the children are urged, but not required, to attend classes for the purpose of giving insight into the workings of the church, its history and some of the things expected of them as Christians.

"Now this is only if they express the desire to know," he said. "I conduct the classes myself, taking as much or as little time as is needed to answer their questions. Then when they understand their obligations and the church's, they can be baptized.

"As far as separate worship services are concerned, we have had them here, but the problem is finding and keeping adequate leadership.

"I think it's a good idea, because in a Sunday morning congretation you are faced with ministering to many different groups -- the very young, the very old, various social and economic levels, different levels of intelligence -- and it's difficult to preach without scatter - shooting. That is, rather than aiming at one target, you find yourself trying to hit many different targets. Therefore, any time you can isolate one of these groups and concentrate your efforts into one specific area, I think it's good."

The Rev. Erny McDonough, director of education at First Assembly of God Church expressed similar views:

"Since we're creatures of habit, the earlier we can begin teaching children to assemble -- Sunday school and church -- the earlier they begin learning and working together. Bringing them into a group gives them more than they could get at home.

"Separate worship services, to a point, are good. We have a children's worship hour on Sunday morning during regular church for children through 12. They are read a story that portrays a Bible scripture and they sing songs. But during the other scheduled worship services, on Sunday night and Wednesday night, children are brought into the auditorium. This is good for them, too, because they need to learn to sit still, be quiet and have respect for God's house.

"Just like school, we could teach ali ages in one room on one level, but some of it would escape the younger children."

"Christian education should begin at the beginning of life," the Rev. Fr. Robert Schumacher, pastor of St. Francis Xavier Catholic church, said. From the very beginning, parents are involved in giving a child an outlook on life -- either favorable or unfavorable. In the same way, a child sees the parents' attitudes towards Christianity and the Church.

"As you probably know, Christian education is the main reason we as Catholics favor church - affiliated schooling for our children. In this way, the formal teaching is integrated into their everyday lives. In a less formal way, however, religious education can begin by teaching a child the real meaning of Christmas from the view of his faith. This sort of teaching, coupled with Bible schooling on Sunday morning is a good way to guide pre - school children.

"On the subject of separate services for children," he continued, "I really couldn't evaluate. It is done in some of the larger parishes, and with good results, but here, since I am the only priest, it's impossible."

In supplying background information on religious education, the Rev. Tom Bass, pastor of Hunter Memorial First Presbyterian Church, said, "The church school movement began sometime in the early 1800s, and in most churches, there are divisions, such as grade levels or division of boys and girls, and I think there is a 100 per cent need of formal training. But it's important to recognize that sometimes with these youngsters, our goals are so vague, it's almost ineffectual.

"I personally think Christian education should last from cradle to grave. In the early years, it should be the prime task of the home to develop relationships between a child and his parents and a child and his siblings. It must begin at home. The church simply supplements this development

"Recognition of exactly what it means to be a Christian comes later, after formal church school classes begin. In other words, to sustain the experience of becoming a Christian, I feel an academic background is just as important as the emotional experience, because in the beginning, children are impressed but have very little depth in their thinking."

"Separate services?" he pondered. "I personally don't like them. I think the idea of group fellowship is lost when you break the worship service into different areas. And, after all, fellowship is what Christianity is all about."

Sunday Frowns Among Youth Church Gripes

LOUISVILE, Ky. (AP) — Smiles should replace frowns on Sunday morning, suggested Mickey Harrison, one of several young persons who were sounding off their impressions of the church-in unabashed terms.

"You go in there on Sunday morning and everybody's frowning, the deacon's frowning, the elder's frowning—it sort of gets me down," said Harrison of Coffeyville, Kan.

"Next time, smile a little. Be happy. God loves you." The observation was part of two hours of wide-open criticism and appeals by youth delegates Sunday at the biennial assembly of the Christian Church&Disciples of Christ.

Debby McAfee of Little Rock, Ark., said that older people in the Church chronically refused to deal with hard questions asked by youths.

"They say accept it, shut up," she said. "Well, you're going to have to start giving some answers. And nobody is going to tell me to shut up."

More than 5,000 older church men and women were present at Louisville's Convention Center and frequently applauded the youngsters.

Several commended the 1.5million-member Church for declaring earlier that it stands "against war and for peace."

Although omitting a proposed section that would have identified the denomination as a "peace church" akin to Quakers and other pacificst religious groups, the approved resolution upheld members right to hold that position.

Paul Effington of Memphis, Tenn., said college students feel ignored by the Church.

"Weve found that what you've taught us—of love, brotherhood and peace—you don't try to do, and tell us not to do it. Well, you better start doing it. We've had our fill of talk and are ready for action."

Ban On Church Chimes Arouses Controversy

CHICAGO (AP) — The Rev. Warren Mueller reluctantly has silenced the chimes of his church and the Chicago Noise Pollution Board which made him do it may find it has opened a Pandora's box.

For 22 years the carillon at St. Peter's United Church of Christ was sounded at quarterhour intervals from 8 a.m. to 9 p.m. and was heard over a oneblock residential area on Chicago's Northwest Side.

"I thought everybody loved it," said the Rev. Mr. Mueller. "Then the noise pollution thing came up on a complaint of some residents. The next thing I knew, I was ticketed three weeks ago."

The Rev. Mr. Mueller said the only time the chimes have sounded since then was for a decibel reading by the company that installed them and a week ago Sunday for "a world-wide communion service."

The Rev. Mr. Mueller found some sympathy in court Tuesday. He appeared to answer two complainants and he carried with him a petition signed by 3,400 residents who said they wanted the electrically operated carillon turned back on.

More than 200 persons gathered to hear the proceedings in Circuit Court.

Judge Vincent W. Tondryk took one look at the noisy crowd and requested a pretrial hearing in his chambers.

Scripture: Isaiah. 61, Ephesians 2: 11-19; Colassians 1:21-23

GOD HEALS BROKEN HUMANITY

God has been viewed from many angles in our current series of lessons. To some He is a God of battle, to others a God of peace. He may be a stern, avenging judge; He may be a God of mercy.

Unfortunately, too many consider Him to be associated with history, thus lacking any real role in our contemporary society. These are the individuals who are upset by the rock opera, "Jesus Christ Superstar" a production that tells the story in today's language.

In times of extreme difficulty, God sends help. Isaiah appeared before the broken-hearted people of his day to bring them comfort.

"Ancient ruin shall be rebuilt," Isaiah says, and "Foreigners shall serve as shepherds of your flocks, and aliens shall till your land and tend your vines."

In the New Testament Paul tells the Colassians who were estranged from God that, "by Christ's death in His body of flesh and blood God has reconciled you to Himself, so that He may present you before Himself as dedicated men, without blemish and innocent in His sight."

Times have not changed We have our problems and we still turn to God for guidance. Unfortunately, we tend to lose our sensitivity to the poor, to war victims, to those who suffer from disasters in foreign countries.

If we don't see such events take place we don't really "feel" the consequences as we should. It is difficult for one who eats three good meals daily to comprehend the pressing need for food to feed the other half of the world that goes to bed each night hungary.

There are those who remind us that Jesus said we should feed the people. He never directed that billions of dollars be spent to send men to the moon.

Welfare problems today top the lists of many federal and state agencies. Officials debate the responsibility involved the amount of relief necessary and the requirements for eligibility.

Broken humanity is visible all about us, two thousand years after Christ spoke of similar incidents. Christ came to us voicing hope for all who suffered.

How have we responded?

For centuries we have had the afflicted with us. For years we have placed such persons in homes and hospitals away from the rest of humanity.

Today we recognize such problems in the open, sharing the warmth and fellowship that comes from belief in God. Frank Crane once wrote in his newspaper column that "Jesus was the only teacher tall enough to see over the fences that divide the human race into compartments."

As communities encounter problems affecting the people they must define the difficulties, set specific goals. God would have us work in groups to attack these sores in our society.

But we must act now. As Peter and the Apostles say in "Jesus Christ Superstar"—

"Hang on Lord, we're gonna fight for you."

Graham Sees Good Impact In Rock Opera

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) -- Evangelist Billy Graham says the rock opera "Jesus Christ Superstar" is having one good impact on the nation.

"In the beginning God created the heaven and the earth. And the earth was without form, and void. And darkness was on the face of the deep. And the spirit of God moved upon the face of the water. And God said let there be light and there was light."
Genesis 1:1,2,3.

God separated the light and darkness and called it day and night. And it was the first day. The second day He divided the waters and the firmament and called the firmament heaven. The water was gathered together under one place and land appeared. They were called Seas and Earth and on the earth was grass and trees, and it was the end of the third day.

The fourth day He created the Sun and Moon and stars to give light to the earth.

The fifth and sixth day He created all living creatures. The birds of the air, the fish in the sea and all the animals of the earth and also man and woman.

"And God saw everything that He had made and, behold, it was very good . . ."
Genesis 1:31

"And God blessed the seventh day and sanctified it; because that in it He had rested from all His work which God created and made."
Genesis 2:3

National League Dominates AP All-Star Team

NEW YORK (AP) — The National League dominated the 1971 Associated Press Major League All-Star baseball team by landing players on all but two berths on the 10-man squad.

Mickey Lolich of the Detroit Tigers was named the lefthanded pitcher ahead of Vida Blue of the Oakland A's and Tony Oliva of the Minnesota Twins was chosen to one of the outfield spots as the AL representatives.

The world champion Pittsburgh Pirates and the Chicago Cubs each placed two players in the annual poll of sports writers and sportscasters announced Thursday in which 285 participated prior to the league playoffs and World Series.

The Pirates landed outfielder Willie Stargell and catcher Manny Sanguillen on the squad while the Cubs are represented by second baseman Glenn Beckert and right-handed pitcher Ferguson Jenkins. The Chicago hurler beat out Tom Seaver of the New York Mets. The other outfield berth went to slugger Hank Aaron of the Atlanta Braves while the rest of the infield consisted of first baseman Lee May of the Cincinnati Reds, third baseman Joe Torre of the St. Louis Cardinals and shortstop Maury Wills of the Los Angeles Dodgers.

Aaron, who enjoyed a banner season with a .327 batting average, a career high 47 homers and 118 runs batted in, drew the most votes, 230. Stargell, the National League home run king with 48, was next in the outfield voting with 208.

Oliva, the American League batting champion with a .337 average, was far back in third place with a 180 votes.

Beckert, who batted .342 ran away with the second base berth, drawing 223 while runnerup Cookie Rojas of the Kansas City Royals collected 15. Beckert is the lone repeater from last year.

In the closest balloting, Wills, who batted .281 and was a Dodger sparkplug, nipped Fred Patek of the Royals, 66-53.

Baltimore, the American League champion, failed to place a player on a the first team. Third baseman Brooks Robinson and outfielder Frank Robinson, though, made the second team.

Roberto Clemente, who led the Pirates to their World Series triumph, placed fourth in the outfield voting with 92. He was followed by Bobby Murcer of the New York Yankees, 56, and Frank Robinson, 36.

Sanguillen, another Pirate Series star and .319 hitter during the regular season, won the catching spot by drawing 180 votes to 51 for Johnny Bench of the Reds.

Torre, the NL's Leading Hitter (.363) and RBI-man (137), collected 212 votes at third base compared to 57 for Brooks Robinson.

May, the Cincinnati slugger who batted .278, outdrew Detroit Tiger first baseman Norm Cash, 88-51.

Lolich, who won 25 and lost 14, paced the AL in strkeouts (308) and compiled a 2.92 earned run average, outpolled Blue, the early season sensation, 143-123.

Blue finished with the best ERA in the AL, 1.82, and registered a 24-8 won-lost record along with 301 strikeouts.

Jenkins, who had a 24-13 record and 263 strikeouts, drew 127 votes compared to Seaver's 84 for the righty pitching berth. Seaver led the NL in strikeouts with 289 and ERA with 1.76 while rolling up a 20-10 mark.

Bengals Make Easy Work Of Dogs

CAPE GIRARDEAU-- Central high school continued its march toward its third straight northern division football championship Thursday night at the expense of the Sikeston Bulldogs. It scored to a 49-20 victory before 3.000 homecoming fans, who braved threatening rain at Houck stadium.

The game was securily tucked away in the Cape Girardeau Bengals victory column after the first quarter. Cape's defense forced two fumbles in that 12 minute which the offense quickly converted to touchdowns and the host enjoyed a 21-0 lead.

Speedy Calvin Sides got the host's scoring started with a 30-yard jaunt midway in the first quarter after a bad punt by the Bulldogs set the Bengals up on the 40-yard line from where they crossed in four plays. That score came one minute and a half after the Bengal offense got its hands on the ball for the first time.

Only 57 seconds later, Cape's defense began its work and forced a fumble on the 10-yard line from where Bruce Fee trotted in from seven yards out on the second play to spot the host a 14-0 lead.

Brad Buchanan, a light 145-pound tackel, got credit for the third touchdown of the quarter when he fell on a lose ball in the end zone after a Sikeston fumble.

The score balooned to 28-0 midway in the second period when Paul Schermann raced from one sideline to the other after hauling in a pass from Don Zimmer to score on a 51-yard pass play. After that touchdown and Steve Lee's fourth extra point boot the game was just a long drawnout affair for the fans, who expected to set in on a defensive battle.

The renowned defense of the Central Tigers held the Bulldogs at bay in the rushing game but was unable to stop the passing combination of Junior Bill Colwick to fellow classman Glen Guttenfelder, who teamed for three. TDs.

The Central Tigers are 3-0 in conference play and the Bulldogs are 2-2- and 3-4 overall.

Sikeston marched behind the passing of Colwick to Guffenfelder and the running of Brian Montgomery and withthe help of a interference penalty on Cape. Colwick passed to Guttenfelder from five yards out and Sikeston had six points. Cape blocked the extra point try and the score was 28-6.

Sikeston picked up five downs with he aid of penalities. It had six via the air and one rushing.

It looks as if the Bulldogs were going to get back into the game at this point but Cape took the kickoff on the second play from scrimmage Zimmer and fooled the defense and fired a pass to Gary Slattery for a 70-yard run into the end zone. Lee kicked his fifth extra point and Cape led 35-6.

The Bulldogs did not give up. Colwick hit Guttenfelder for a 50-yard touchdown. This time Larry Voliva kicked the extra point and the score was 35-13 at the half.

The Bulldogs were minus 19 yards rushing in the first half with 132 passing. Cape passed only twice in the first half and completed one for the 70-yard score.

After neither team could move the ball on the first two series of downs the Tigers intercepted a Colwick pass at the Sikeston 25-yard line and punched across the goal line on the running of Sides and Scherman with Schermann getting the TD from the one-yard line. Lee kicked the extra point and Cape led 42-13.

Sikeston came right back as Colwick hit Guttenfelder on the Bulldog 40-yard line and Guttenfield ran 60 yards for his third TD. Voliva kicked his extra point and the score was 42-20 as the Third quarter closed.

Another fumble, at the Sikeston 44 yard line cut short a Bulldog drive. Paul Schermann used three running plays to hit pay dirt for the seventh TD. Lee added another extra point and Cape led 49-20. Cape Central used its reserves for the final minutes of the fourth period.

Good Quail, Rabbit Numbers In Tennessee

NASHVILLE, Tenn. -- An extremely good crop of quail and rabbits will be on hand for Tennessee hunters when they open the season November 6, according to officials of the Tennessee Game and Fish Commission.

"We have had excellent weather conditions during the spring and summer, and as a result expect small game populations better than we have experienced in past years," Roy Anderson, Chief of the Commission's Game Management Division, said following field surveys by his biologists.

Anderson indicated the best quail concentrations are found in southern middle and west Tennessee, while the central basin area in middle Tennessee sports the best rabbit populations.

Anderson said the total quail population in Tennessee is estimated to be better than 6,000,000 birds.

In a departure from past years, the November 6 quail and rabbit season opening is some two weeks earlier than the traditional Thanksgiving opener, and and officials are optimistic about the hunters' chance for success.

"We feel hunters will be taking an extra 200,000 quail and about one - half million more rabbits due to the early season opening," Anderson said, pointing out that these birds will be harvested instead of being wasted as they have in past years.

While there will be some young birds taken by hunters, the proportion should be about one juvenile bird for every seven adult birds, Anderson indicated.

Good Season Expected

If your's a bow hunter, shotgunner or rifleman, get ready for a hunting season with plenty of action. The August survey of hunting conditions and species made by the conservation department, Winchester-Western Division of Olin industries indicates a banner hunting season across the nation and especially in Missouri.

The deer herds in Missouri are large, according to the survey.

Hunters will have one day less in which to hunt than last year, when in 10 days hunters claimed a record 28,290 animals. The nine-day 1971 season, which starts Nov. 13, will be under a system of management units. Shooting hours will be from 6:30 a.m. to 5 p.m.

ROLLA -- Going hunting this year? Got your gun cleaned and your hunting permit purchased? With the opening of deer season, many Missourians will be packing their gear and heading for their favorite hunting spots with high hopes of getting a big one.

Along with their rifles, compasses, and hunting equipment, most experienced sportsmen take along a topographic map showing their favorite hunting spots, notes Dr. Wallace B. Howe, State Geologist and Director of the Missouri Geological Survey in Rolla, Mo. Although these maps do not have specific markings showing the actual location of deer (as few people request), they can be used to pinpoint woodlands (which might provide cover for game) or open spots (which could serve as feeding areas).

Topographic maps give a picture of the terrain with clearings, wooded areas, houses, barns, bridges, streams, springs and ponds shown as well as roads and trails. With a little practice in reading contours, a hunter can estimate the height of each hill, the depth of each valley, and the approximate elevation and slope of the ground. He can figure how far he will have to walk from one likely looking hunting spot to another with little trouble.

This Missouri Geological Survey now markets more than 25,000 topographic maps each year, most of which are shipped by mail to an astonishing variety of customers. They are used by city planners, geologists, surveyors, salesmen, and many others as well as by hunters, trappers, and fishermen. The area which can normally be covered during a day's hunting or hiking is shown on a 1:24,000-scale topographic quadrangle map (one inch on the map represents 2,000 feet on the ground). A map drawn on this scale may cover about 60 square miles, depending on the latitude.

According to Dr. Howe, topographic maps are ideal for planning hunting stratigraphy in advance. Even the most inexperienced outdoorsman has little trouble in identifying access roads, jeep and pack trails, or old logging roads. Well planned hunting trips are generally much more interesting because the hunter knows exactly where he is going and what to expect. Even swamps and marshes (which are often the haunts of deer, turkey, beaver and other animals) are identified by appropriate symbols. When deer season is over, topographic maps can still be used for planning camping expeditions, float trips, hikes, or even Sunday afternoon outings.

Hunters on the way to their favorite hunting spots may stop at the Missouri Geological Survey at Buehler Park in Rolla, Mo. and get a map for 50 cents. Prepaid orders will be filled by addressing the Survey, Box 250, Rolla, Mo. 65401. If the name of a certain topographic quadrangel map is not known, a postcard may be forwarded to this same address for a free Index to Topographic Maps.

Is now the time to buy land?

Acquiring that new farm without delay might seem more practical if you considered the benefits of financing through the Federal Land Bank. Today's expensive land is easier to pay for when its cost is amortized over extra years with a long-term Land Bank Loan. Your total cost of borrowing, too, can be less with a Land Bank loan.

As your local Land Bank Association, we offer a complete loan service: We know current land values; we will inspect the property being considered. We will examine your overall plans and resources, and make an income projection. We will then make a loan recommendation that fits your needs precisely and, whenever possible, provide the capital it takes to meet your goals.

Big 8 Battle Tops Schedule

Oklahoma makes a Wish and Kansas State Coach Vince Gibson says a prayer Saturday.

The second-ranked Sooners send their Wishbone-T offense against Kansas State in one of Saturday's top college football games, prompting this reaction from Gibson: "You pray you don't get killed."

He has a point. Oklahoma has won five straight with a powerhouse crew that includes quarterback Jack Mildren and halfbacks Joe Wylie and Greg Pruitt, who has gained 421 yards rushing in the last two games.

"They're unbelievable," says Gibson. "They're a super football team. They have super speed."

They also have more confidence than last year, according to Gibson.

"That's the big difference between Oklahoma last year and this," said Gibson. "A fumble doesn't bother them because they know they can come back. They can't get quite excited about us after they way we've been stinking up the place the last few weeks."

The Wildcats have a 2-4 record after straight losses to Colorado, Kansas and Iowa State.

Nebraska, 6-0, the nation's No. 1-ranked team, visits Oklahoma State 3-1-1 in another big Saturday match. The mighty Cornhuskers held Kansas to a minus 42 yards rushing last week.

Third-ranked Michigan, 6-0, which has posted three shutouts in six games, takes on Minnesota 3-3; No. 4 Alabama, 6-0, hosts Houston, 4-1; fifth-ranked Auburn, 5-0, tackles Clemson, 2-3; No. 6 Notre Dame, 5-0, plays Southern California, 2-4; seventh-rated Penn State, 5-0, plays Texas Christian, 2-2-1; No. 8 Georgia, 6-0, meets Kentucy, 1-5; ninth-ranked Arkansas, 5-1, tackles North Texas State and No. 10 Stanford, 5-1, entertains Washington State.

In the Second Ten, it's No. 11 Colorado against Missouri; Wisconsin at No. 12 Ohio State; Arizona State, tied for No. 14, at New Mexico; Dayton at No. 14 Toledo; 16th-rated Texas against Rice; No. 17 Purdue at Illinois; 18th ranked Tennessee versus Mississippi State; No. 19 Duke at Navy and No.20 Air Force at Colorado State.

IMPRESSIVE FIGURES

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The most impressive attendance figures in sports history is the total of 277,750 paid admissions for the three 1959 World Series games played in the Los Angeles Coliseum between the Dodgers and the Chicago White Sox.

All three games were on free television in Los Angeles. The second and third games were played on Monday and Tuesday afternoons, respectively.

Perry Favors Blue For Cy Young Award

KANSAS CITY---Vida Blue, Mickey Lolich or Wilbur Wood?

This was the question put to Minnesota Twins righhander Jim Perry, 1970 American League winner of the Cy Young Award, during the Twins last visit of the campaign to Kansas City.

Whom does Perry feel should be his successor to pitching's highest honor?

"I'd have to go with Vida Blue," Jim said before theTwins final sunday morning chapel service of the season. "It's a hard choice to make among three excellent pitchers, but I feel the key factor is that Blue helped his team to a fast start. And that's crucial. Lolich (Detroit Tiger ace) and Wood (Chicago knuckleballer) contributed to their teams' strong finishes. But by then Vida had helped make Oakland a sho-in for the division title."

Perry reflected on the season with staff members from theFellowship of Christian Athletes national headquarters here who were conducting the chapel service for the Twins. The Twins and the Chicago Cubs have major league baseball's most active chapel programs, in which the players organize Sunday services during the road trips. Perry and pitcher Jim Kaat head up the Twins' service while Don Kessinger, Randy Hundley, J.C. Martin and Phil Regan sparkplug the Cub's program.

"At all levels of baseball I've made a habit of going to church," said Perry, the unaffected country boy from North Carolina. "A business man should never be too busy to worship. A pro ballplayer is no different. Our Sunday hours are difficult, but we can and do make time to worship."

The Twins average from, 10 to 25 men at the services throughout the season. In Kansas City slugger Harmon Killebrew, outfielder Jim Holt, broadcasters Halsey Hall and Herb Carneal and traveling secretary Howard Fox were among those who listened to FCA recording artist Ray Hildebrand speak and sing before Perry went out to win his 17th game.

"It was a rough season for us," said Perry of the team which won back to back western division titles before falling on hard times. "There wer injuries, ineffectiveness in the bullpen and a lack of hitting at the right times. We lost over 30 games after being tied or ahead in the seventh or later.

"I believe I threw well this year. I think winning 17 games for a club going like ours is not bad. With a few breaks I could have won 20 again (24 last year). In one spell I went ten games without a win and in five of those starts we didn't score.

"My Christian faith really kept me going this season. In times of personal frustration I just know things are going to work out and get better. A lot of guys don't have faith going for them -- and some of them just can't cope with the tough times."

Perry, at 34, hopes to have "another five years left." He feels the Twins who sat on a pat hand last winter, will make some noise in the trading market. As for himself, he spent more time on the road last winter after winning the Young award than he did during the season. He plans to get in his annual hunting trip to Wyoming, speak in a number of churches and spend much more time with his family.

Much of Jim's spiritual growth is attributed to former teammates Al Worthington and Jerry Kindall, and the smooth lefty Kaat. This was added to a religious foundation built in his early years in which he went seven years without missing Sunday School and is still told by his parents every time he visits home, "Behave yourself, go to church and honor the Lord."

Missouri Pros Picked To Lose

NEW YORK (AP) — The Washington Redskins, the only unbeaten team in the National Football League, will get their toughest test of the season Sunday—and they will pass it with a victory over the Kansas City Chiefs.

In the other big game of the weekend, the Minnesota Vikings will eke out a victory over the Baltimore Colts.

That's how it looks to this picker who was 10-3 last week for a three-week total of 26-12-1.

Picking 'em:

Washington 24, Kansas City 23—with Larry Brown and Charley Harraway, Washington has the running that will allow Bill Kilmer to pass against and make the Chiefs the Redskins' sixth straight victim. Kansas City has the home field and that old standby—momentum—after a season-opening loss.

Minnesota 20, Baltimore 17—Minnesota's defense against Baltimore's running game, with the Vikings' coming out on top in this meeting two once-beaten powers on Monday night.

San Diego 31, Buffalo 21—the only thing different this week for winless Buffalo is that this game is on a Saturday night.

Detroit 31, Chicago 6—Detroit will eventually wear down a good Chicago defens which should get little chance to rest. Because of injuries Chicago will go with third-string quarterback Bobby Douglass.

Oakland 24, Cincinnati 21— Daryle Lamonica and his Oakland playmates know that they can break away from a tie with Kansas City should the Chiefs fall to Washington. The Bengals are always troublesome. They also are 1-4.

Miami 31, New York Jets 14—Third-string quarterback Bob Davis got the Jets past Baltimore and they tied Miami earlier this season. But now Bob Griese and the Dolphins appear to be in gear.

Los Angeles 23, Green Bay 19—The Rams beat San Francisco and Atlanta on the road and should have a happy homecoming against Green Bay, especially with quarterback Roman Gabriel apparently in good form and defensive end Deacon Jones back after missing two games.

Cleveland 34, Denver 10— Cleveland has the passing of Bill Nelsen and the running of Leroy Kelly and Bo Scott. And the Browns are healthy, Denver is not.

San Francisco 24, St. Louis 20—The hot-and-cold tendecies of the two clubs make this one a tough game to pick. But John Brodie's arm and the hip injury of St. Louis safety Larry Wilson give the 49ers an edge.

New Orleans 24, Atlanta 17— with rookie quarterback Archie Manning, who plays as though he stills thinks his opponents are college teams, and a good defense, the Saints are too much for Atlanta, which is expected to start Dick Shiner at quarterback in place of Bob Berry who has a pulled hamstring.

Dallas 45, New England 10— The poor Patriots got Detroit and Baltimore rebounding from defeats and were clobbered. Now then get Dallas coming off an upset loss to New Orleans.

Pittsburgh 27, Houston 17— The Steelers might have the Sunday-after-Monday night blues, but Terry Bradshaw's passing and their defensive line figure to stop Houston, still looking to get untracked.

New York Giants 24, Philadelphia 21—This might be the Eagles best chance for a victory all season, but it won't happen.

YOU BE THE QUARTERBACK

By Paul (Bear) Bryant
Head Coach, University of Alabama
Compliments of
Wal—Mart Discount Center

The veteran North Carolina defense has knocked down several passes thrown by you, the Wake Forest quarterback. Deciding to pass on your own 29-yard line, second down and one, you wonder whether to fade quickly back and throw or to call a play action pass with a run faked before fading. So far as the trajectory of the pass is concerned, which is true:

1. With play action, you can throw ball on a line rather than lobbing it over defenders?
2. Fading back quickly enables you to throw ball on a line?
3. You should lob the ball no matter which pass you call?
4. There's no difference in trajectory between play action pass and one with quarterback quickly fading?

Answer

No. 1. With play action, ball can be thrown on line. Linebackers are key and play action on second down and one pulls them into line.

Northern Missouri Cities Prepare For Goose Festivals

JEFFERSON CITY, -- For the past few weeks, tens of thousands of Canada, snow and blue geese have moved into Missouri.

According to Ken White, outdoor editor, of the Missouir Tourism Commission, there should be a record number of hunters, birdwatchers and tourists viewing these majestic birds this year.

The two Federal Wildlife refuges in north Missouri, Squaw Creek near Mound City, and Swan Lake near Sumner, will be the resting area for hundreds of thousands of geese this fall and winter.

This year the Missouri waterfowl season opens October 31, and in conjunction with the opening, the two towns are busy making plans for the influx of visitors both feathered and otherwise.

Sumner, known as the wild goose capital of the world, will hold their 17th annual Wild Goose Festival October 29,30, and 31.

During the three day event, sponsored by the Sportsmans Club of Sumner, a carnival atmosphere will prevail. The festival will include everything from a baby show to a Queen contest to a Goose Calling contest. The celebration promises to furnish fun and entertainment for the entire family.

Mound City, called the duck hunting Mecca of the mid-west, is making plans on their annual Ducks Unlimited dinner.

Both of the Federal areas will conduct tours of the Refuge prior to opening The Swan Lake and Fountain Grove areas, which have a population of nearly 100,000 geese and 35,000 ducks at present, will have an open house and tour October 24, from 8:30 a.m. until 4 p.m.

The Squaw Creek Refuge has in addition to daily tours a museum at the area headquarters. The museum houses displays featuring some of the 273 species of birds seen on the area.

Tours are held daily from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. weekdays and 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. on weekends and holidays. The 10 mile drive around the outside perimeter of the refuge affords the viewer a close-up of thousands of migrating waterfowl.

At present there are over 100,000 blue and snow geese, and 20,000 ducks in the Squaw Creek zone.

Harold Burgess, refuge manager, asks visitors to register at the office prior to entering the restricted waterbird area.

Hunters, although sometimes failing to bag the limit of waterfowl, never fail to see thousands of ducks and geese. At peak population, Squaw Creek hosts over 200,000 geese, mostly snows, and 125,000 mallards. Swan Lakes' high is around 140,000 geese, mostly Canada, and 80,000 ducks.

DAVIDSON, N.C. (AP) — Bryan Adrian, Davidson College basketball star, is expected to undergo knee surgery this weekend.

Father Ceases Shell Out

By Jack Strauss, LL. B.

Sharon operated on the honor system at college. Her teachers had the honor and she had the system. It inabled her to avoid going to class, living in the dorm as required and permitted her to spend all of her time with lowbrows who were constantly high.

Ultimately, Sharon's well—heeled father got the picture. Viewing his daughter's dirty and ugly appearance and her constantly failing marks, he ordered her home to attend a local college.

Sharon, however, turned a deaf ear to the demand, and her father, in turn, refused to shall out any further loot for her support or for the cost of her continued education. Indignant, Sharon took her father to court.

"A father has no right to force his standards upon a child," she complained to a judge, "and that's what my father's trying to do to me. Since a father has a duty to support a minor child, and to send that child to college if he can afford it, my father can't shirk that oblication."

"She's not only a minor," responded Sharon's father, "she's also a golddigger. She wants me to finance her going to pot and I won't do it and nobody can make me do it."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you require Sharon's father to continue to support her and to pay her education needs?

This is how the judge ruled: NO! he judge held that the father of a minor child is charged with the discipline and support of that child and cannot avoid that obligation merely because they are at odds with each other or even because of the child's delinquent behavior. However, in return for maintenance and support, noted the judge, a father may impose reasonable regulations for his child. And, where the father is not at fault, and the child voluntarily abandon's the parental home to avoid parental discipline and restraint, as in this case, the child forfeits the claim to support. (Based upon a 1971 New York Court of Appeals Decision) install your television antenna safely!

This is the time of year when many people buy new television sets. And, an increasing number of them are color sets and home entertainment centers.

Installed properly and safely your television set can provide good, low-cost entertainment. Here are four safety tips for your consideration in installing your television antenna:

1
Your outdoor antenna and lead-ins should not cross over power lines. Place them well away from lines to avoid accidential contact, if they should fall or break.

2
Mount your antenna mast on a sturdy structure. Remember the antenna must withstand extreme weather conditions, such as heavy winds.

3
Your antenna mast should be permanently grounded and a lighting arrestor installed on the lead-in.

4
Observe local building codes.

Following these rules, you should avoid most of the hazards of television antenna installation. Also keep in mind that your television antenna does not have to be on the roof. Satisfactory results may be achieved by installing the antenna indoors in your attic. Indoor installation is usually quite satisfactory for reception within 20 to 30 miles of the station.

Today In U.S. History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Friday, Oct. 22, the 295th day of 1971. There are 70 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1962, President John F. Kennedy ordered U.S. air and naval forces to quarantine Cuba. He acted after concluding Soviet missile bases were being built on the island.

On this date—

In 1721, Peter the Great took the title of Czar of All Russia.

In 1746, Princeton University in New Jersey was chartered.

In 1883, the former Metropolitan Opera House in New York had its grand opening.

In 1907, a run on a New York bank set off a financial crisis known as the panic of 1907.

In 1942, during World War II, the British air force pounded the Italian port of Genoa.

In 1953, France granted independence to Laos.

Ten years ago: Nine U.S. soldiers with fixed bayonets moved into East Berlin as escorts of an American diplomat who had been turned back by Communist border guards.

Five years ago: President Lyndon B. Johnson was drawing record-breaking crowds on a visit to Australia.

One year ago: Two American generals lost on a flight to Turkey made a safe landing in Soviet Armenia. The Soviets accused them of violating Russian air space.

Court Choice Reaction Good

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon's nomination of Lewis F. Powell Jr. and William H. Rehnquist to the Supreme Court has left battleprimed Senate Democrats without their expected targets.

The President disclosed his choices for the two court vacancies in a television-radio address to the nation Thursday night. The immediate reaction, in and out of Congress, indicated they may escape bruising battles that have divided the Senate in the recent past.

Powell, 64, a Richmond, Va., trial lawyer, and Rehnquist, 47, an assistant attorney general, were described by Nixon as judicial conservatives like himself. He indicated he expects them to correct what he called a shift in the balance of power in American society against "the peace forces."

He said, however, that "their sole obligation is to the Constitution and the American people and not to the President who appointed them."

Republicans in Congress were generally quick to laud the President's selections. And even such Democratic senators as Edward M. Kennedy of Massachusetts and Birch Bayh of Indiana, who had been blasting Nixon's rumored choices, had no fault to voice.

Bayh said Powell and Rehnquist "appear to be significantly better qualified" than some of the names that had been leaked as under consideration to fill the vacancies created by retirement of John M. Harlan and the late Hugo L. Black.

"It is ironic that the President did not send down these names earlier but rather tried to make these nominations political footballs—sort of a threering circus in which there was a little bit for everybody," Bayh said.

Kennedy said he is pleased "that the President has pulled back from the brink he was approaching," an apparent allusion to the fact neither Powell nor Rehnquist was among the six possible nominees Nixon had submitted for screening to the American Bar Association's Committee on the Federal Judiciary.

Kennedy had called the list "one of the greatest insults to the Supreme Court" in its history.

Bayh led the fights that ended in defeat of Nixon's nominations of two Southern judges, Clement F. Haynsworth Jr. of South Carolina and G. Harrold Carswell of Florida, for an earlier vacancy on the Supreme Court.

suspended from school pending an investigation by school officials.

Absentee figures were not available and the school may have a high absentee rate in the wake of Thursday's violence.

School officials, law enforcement officials, school board members and members of the black community met Thursday afternoon to air the grievances voiced by the students.

In a joint statement, School Superintendent Sam Harbin and John Scott, president of the National Association for Advancement of Colored People chapter, addressed the community.

"The public schools," Harbin said, "will not allow unauthorized occupation of facilities nor permit any interference with its normal or regular activities. Any student engaged in such activities will face immediate suspension and may suffer ultimate dismissal.

"We urge all parents to help us by sending their children to school. Not attending school not only harms the student, but reflects on the community as well. I would like to reiterate that our program will continue in an organized manner and that school officials will use every means to their disposal to insure this objective."

Scott said:

"We feel that the students do have rights and the school must run in an orderly fashion. We also feel that those who are there to disrupt normal operations should be chastised. We further feel that the system and the school board especially working to capacity to get some of the problems solved and it is only through working with them that we can get this problem solved. It is not a thing that can be solved overnight and right now as some would expect."

Apparently no injuries were suffered during skirmishes yesterday. Police Chief Arthur Bruce said "we tried to get by without this. We waited as long as we could and the students didn't have to have it like this."

Nine were treated in the emergency room of the Missouri Delta Community hospital:

Fun In The Round

A Gazebo built early this summer on the back lawn of the home of Mr. and Mrs. Don Kellett, 30 Green Meadows, has brought enjoyment to neighborhood children and grownups. The idea for the structure came to Mrs. Kellett when she saw a picture of one in a magazine. Kellett drew plans and assisted in the construction of the all-weather structure that can seat up to 10. At play with a basketball are, Tonya, center, daughter of the Kelletts, and left, Janie McCord, and her sister, Cindy.

Grievances Aired

School Calm, 28 Jailed

Calm was restored to Sikeston high school this morning but 28 black students remain in jail as a result of yesterday's disturbances.

A series of sporadic sit-ins at the school erupted in violence yesterday but today blacks and whites sat together with no visible signs of tension.

School officials said they are prepared for any disruption of classes but said they fear none.

The 28 black high school students were jailed after a two - hour long confrontation with law enforcement officers at the school and downtown.

Four are being held in the city jail. The others were transferred to Mississippi county jail in Charleston Thursday afternoon.

The 28, 11 juveniles and 17 adults, were arrested when police and students clashed in a series of disturbances following a high school class boycott by blacks Thursday morning. They were charged on two counts of disturbing the peace and unlawful assembly.

Prosecutor Tom Gilmore said this morning that bond has been set at $200 on each of the misdemeanor charges and $500 on two felony charges of striking a police officer.

Those adult students arrested for peace disturbance and unlawful assembly were Noval Lee Patterson, Gwendolyn Thomas, Denise Yvonne Sumlin, Bernice Alexas Richards, Glenda Jean Carter, Tommy Lee Green, Mike Edwards also known as Mike Gibson, John Thomas Yarber, Gary Gene Washington, Jake Hunt, Jerry Darnell Motton, Jeffrey Edward Hobbs and Roosevelt Jones.

Dianne Gale McCullough also was charged with resisting arrest and striking a police officer; Mose Edward Boyd was charged with resisting arrest; and Dwight Cardell Yarber has been charged with resisting arrest and striking a police officer.

Gilmore named five others who will be arrested and charged this morning with peace disturbance and unlawful assembly. They are Sherman Bond, Jessie Green, Phyllis Booth, Herman Prince and Larry Johnson.

All of those arrested were

Little Observance Of Veterans Day

Veterans organizations in Sikeston indicated Thursday they have no activities planned in observance of Veterans Day, Monday.

John Scarbrough, a member of Henry Meldrum American Legion Post 114, said the Legion had discussed a parade but had decided against it.

"We checked with the merchants and schools and found that most everything will be open," he said, "so we didn't feel it would be worth it."

The court house offices at Benton will be closed Monday other than circuit clerk's office. There will be a circuit court session.

Closed will be the city administration building, Sikeston post office, International Shoe Company plant, Missouri Utilities, Missouri state employment service, Missouri State Highway department offices, district welfare office, board of municipal utilities, public library, Scott county welfare office, Bank of Sikeston, First National Bank, Security Federal Savings and Loan, and Security National Bank.

The Daily Standard will be published.

Potlatch Forests Inc. and the Noranda Aluminum Inc. plant near Marston, will be open.

Scarbrough said the American Legion will observe the day by placing eight large American flags across the Legion yard.

Previously, the day set aside to honor the service of men and women during the nation's wars was Nov. 11.

The change in dates was preceded by a change in names for the holiday. Veterans Day is a successor to Armistice Day, marking the end of World War I.

A 1968 law changed the date for the observance along with other holidays with the final decision left to the individual states. Gov. Warren E. Hearnes has endorsed the Oct. 25 date.

Paul Slinkard, past state commander of the World War I Veterans Association, said the organization has no plans to observe the Monday holiday.

"We have activities planned for Armistice Day, Nov. 11," he commented, "but we don't recognize Oct. 25 as Veterans Day."

Slinkard added that if his organization was invited to participate in any activities Monday, it would be glad to do it.

Food Prices Dip Sharply

WASHINGTON (AP) — The biggest drop in food prices in four years sharply slowed September's ovsr-all rise of living costs in the first full month of President Nixon's freeze on prices and wages, the government said today.

Grocery prices fell one per cent and the decline in automobile prices also helped to hold down last month's consumer price average, said the Bureau of Labor Statistics.

The government's Consumer Price Index, measuring prices of food, clothing, housing, transportation, medical care and recreation, averaged twotenths of one per cent higher— about half the average monthly rise so far this year—the bureau said.

The reports included some price hikes from before the freeze, which began Aug. 15, and the exact effect of the freeze on over-all living prices could not be precisely measured, the report said.

The rise brought the price index up to 122.4 in September, meaning it took $12.24 last month for every $10 worth of typical family purchases in the base period four years ago.

The bureau also reported that average weekly earnings of some 45 million rank-and-file workers dropped 27 cents to $128.76 because of shorter average work week.

The average pay check was still 5.9 per cent above a year earlier, but after allowance for the 4.2 per cent rise in living costs since then, the gain in purchasing power was about 3 per cent, the bureau said.

The report said that in the third quarter of 1971 ending in September, prices rose at an annual rate of 3.3 per cent, the lowest for anv quarter since 1967 except for the first quarter of the year when mortgage interest rates dropped sharply.

Prices of fresh fruits and vegetables, eggs and coffee, dropped sharply while prices rose for processed fruits and vegetables, beef, margarine and salad oils, the bureau said.

The report said that most of the September rise in prices reflected either items that rose in price before the freeze was imposed, or was due to seasonal or other factors under which price hikes are permissible under the freeze.

As an example of prices that went up before the freeze, the bureau said it prices college tuition only once a year, in September, and it was up nearly nine per cent this year.

College tuition is exempt from the freeze.

Mortgage interest and property taxes, also exempt, went up last month.

The report added that higher prices of imported goods subject to Nixon's special 10 per cent tax surcharge went up and accounted for about one-fourth of the over-all rise in living costs last month.

Wreck Injures 2

MINER — Two Sikeston people were injured in a one-car accident four miles north of Miner Thursday.

At 11:15 a. m. on Route H, a 1970 Mercury traveling south driven by Glenda L. Evans, 34, of Sikeston, went around a curve and into a skid, the highway patrol said, and overturned in a ditch.

The driver sustained a minor knee injury and a passenger, Ernie Rister, 68, of Sikeston, sustained a minor neck injury.

Both were taken to the Missouri Delta COmmunity hospital.

Chamber Wants 40

Membership Drive Opens

The Chamber of Commerce annual membership drive began Thursday with a kick- off breakfast at 7 a.m. at the El Capri restaurant with 16 drive committeemen attending.

O.D. Clayton, manager of the Chamber of Commerce, said the turnout was "wonderful considering the rain." He said three or four members were brought into the Chamber after the breakfast.

The Chamber has 266 members, Clayton said, and "we hope to increase it by 35 or 40."

Shad Old, chairman of the membership committee, said the purpose of the meeting was to give committeemen information needed when making contacts and to pass out prospect cards.

"This is probably the most important drive that we have ever held from a financial standpoint," Old said. He said annual income is approximately $22,000 and it should be increased to $28,000.

Clayton said the additional $6,000 would be used for the cost of postage, telephones, stationary, and to help maintain and take care of a building the chamber might buy and furnish.

Bluff Man Dies Of Injuries

RONBAUER – Roy E. Wyninger, 58, of Poplar Bluff, died at 1 a.m. today in Veterans hospital in Poplar Bluff from head injuries sustained in a three-vehicle collision two miles south of Rombauer on route Z.

The fatality occured, the highway patrol said, 15 miles northeast of Poplar Bluff when a southbound 1960 Rambler driven by Carl Edward Hubbard, 58, of Poplar Bluff, struck a parked 1972 back hoe on the west shoulder of the road operated by Jimmy Jay Bowling, 31, of Dudley, knocking the machine into a parked 1965 International pickup truck on the west shoulder operated by Paul Eugene Divine, 30, of Poplar Bluff.

Wyninger was a passenger in the Rambler.

Wyninger was first taken to Lucy Lee hospital.

The body was taken to Morgan Funeral Home in Puxico.

Injured in the accident and taken to Veterans hospital was Fred Joiner, 57, of Ronbauer, another passenger in the Rambler.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!

Anybody who believes he hasn't a dependent on earth must think the Government is out of this world.

NO COMMON AMERICAN

I do not choose to be a comman man. It is my right to be uncommon if I can. I seek opportunity, not security. I do not wish to be a kept citizen, humbled and dulled by having the state look after me. I want to take the calculated risk; to dream and to build, to fail and to succeed. I refuse to barter incentive for a dole. I prefer the challenge of life to the guaranteed existence; the thrill of fulfillment to the stale calm of Utopia.

I will not trade freedom for beneficence nor my dignity for a handout. I will never cower before any master nor bend to any threat. It is my heritage to stand erect, proud and unafraid; to think and act for myself, to enjoy the benefits of my creations and to face the world boldly and say, "This I have done."

All this is what it means to be an American.

I don't think it would do us a bit of good to raise hell about what the Supreme Court has done to Scott County in the realignment for the new legislature. I see our number is 160. We have Scott, Mississippi and part of Stoddard. We wonder if the people will know who they belong to and who is going to represent them and if the representatives know who they belong to, who is going to vote for them and where they are going to get votes. We don't believe that the new districts in Southeast Missouri are very good. Of course, I guess the computer, which I imagine the judges used in setting the districts, didn't take into consideration the townships or counties. It just took into consideration the people. Right now we don't know whether Scott County is going to have a representative in the legislature or New Madrid County will have a representative for Mississippi County and we don't know whether Stoddard County will have a representative representing Scott County or just what it will be. Of course, if we could get the paid announcement fees from all the candidates, it won't be too bad I guess. But, I'm so damned old it doesn't make a bit of difference to me. I don't care who represents us. Nor what districts we have or what areas. It's not the idea of picking up a good representative, it's the idea of who will be the worse one and it doesn't make any difference to us because nobody that they send up there suits us anyway. Maybe they suit us sometimes and don't suit us seven times or six times or five times or ten times. So, we will meet with open hands every representative who comes in and thinks he is going to serve the public. We want to listen to him tell us how he is going to serve us.

NEEDED: HARMLESS CURB ON RIOTS

Back in the 1960s, when city ghettos were exploding like firecrackers on a string, there was a great deal of discussion about the need for developing nonlethal means of crowd control.

There were reports of work on "bean-bag" and other kinds of guns that stunned people without harming them, of substances which made the ground banana-peel slick and literally swept rioters off their feet. But except for Mace, an agent which temporarily immobilizes when sprayed directly in the face, we have not progressed beyond the traditional forms of riot control — tear gas, clubs and ... bullets.

The tragedy at Attica, in which police shot down nine of the very hostages they were storming the prison to rescue, along with 30 prisoners, is a more dramatic plea for better methods of riot control than any other event in recent history, Kent State included.

The prison corridors and grounds were saturated with tear gas, creating a foglike condition. The hostages were dressed in prisoner garb and the last time some of them had been seen was on the parapet with assigned executioners standing behind them with knives at their throats.

In such a situation, there was little time to discriminate among targets, or even to determine if it was necessary to shoot at all.

The result, as Gov. Rockefeller has said, was to make the tragedy even deeper than we had first believed.

Surely, after all the years of secret work on nerve gas, this country should have been able to develop a mildy and temporarily incapacitating gas that could be used in precisely such a situation as Attica, something that could have paralyzed or put to sleep prisoners and hostages alike.

Tear gas apparently is useless as an incapacitating agent. The police at Attica obviously did not trust its effectiveness. Bullets and buckshot, as we have seen, are all too often totally and permanently effective.

The physical power in the hands of law officers is like having a car with brakes that either lock the wheels or don't work at all. That is, the restraining force cannot be applied gradually, judiciously. It must either be used massively or not used at all.

It is unfair, to the police as well as their victims, that this is the only kind of force at their disposal.

Perhaps one of the best explanations of what is causing delays in the construction of better highways can be found in a story on "The Red — Tape Jungle ..." in a recent issue of U.S. News & World Report. It describes how centralized bureaucracy gradually strangles itself and the country on rules and paper work. A picture illustrates the theme of the story. It shows two young women standing on chairs to steady an eight-or-ten foot high pile of reports and forms that were required to start one federally aided highway project in Illinois.

The only bright spot in the story is the indication that bureaucracy may price itself out of the market. One state official says the amount Washington contributes to a local project is insufficient to cover the costs added in meeting federal requirements. Rules for federal participation with states in road projects have become so complicated that, aside from the cost, there is a growing time lag between the start of a project and the beginning of construction. In California, lead time on a federal project can run as high as 13 years - - and we have heard that in Kansas this time is running around six to nine years, too.

We suspect the day will come when people realize that centralized government and "the Red — Tape Jungle..." is not the mark of progress, but the brand of stagnation and national decline.

SIX-YEAR PRESIDENTS

"These hearings are intended to set people to thinking -- congressmen, political scientists, columnists, the public," says Peter W. Coogan, general counsel to Sen. Birch Bayh's Subcommittee on Constitutional Amendments. He was referring to hearings scheduled Oct. 28 and 29 on a proposed amendment (S J Res 77) to limit the President to a single six-year term.

Although Sen. Bayh (D Ind.) contends that the single six-year presidential term is a subject too long ignored by scholarly investigation, the issue has had a long and controversial history. Since the Constitution was adopted in 1788, nearly 160 amendments have been proposed to change the term from four to six years. The great majority of these would have made a President ineligible for re-election. Andrew Jackson, James Buchanan, Andrew Johnson, and Rutherford B. Hayes were among Presidents favoring a single six-year term. The most recent legislation affecting the Presidential term was the 22nd amendment, ratified in 1951, which limited a President to two four-year terms.

Arguments supporting the single six-year term center around the idea that too often Presidents make decisions with a view to the effect a given course of action may have on the next election. Political consequences and not statesmanship dictate too many decisions. Advocates also contend that beginning with the latter half of his second year in office, the Chief Executive spends a disproportionate and ever increasing amount of time on election strategy and mechanics. Both Congress and the public tend to dismiss many worthy programs as political ploys. If the President could not succeed himself, it is argued, people would be less likely to treat his program as partisan maneuvers.

Opponents claim that a President ineligible to run again would in effect be a lameduck from the beginning of his term, and unable to exercise the full powers of his office. They argue that following a period of crisis, the people should have the opportunity to elect the same President again. Some suggest that a single four-year term might well be sufficient. Would two extra years to implement programs make any real difference? Moreover, six years might put a strain on public patience with an unpopular President.

NEW YORK (AP) — Jumping to conclusions:

A woman would rather be slapped in public by a man than lose an argument to him in public.

Women don't mind changing their minds any more than they mind exchanging something they bought from the department store, but—they want to do the changing themselves.

A man who tries to change a woman's mind in the presence of others only makes an enemy. The old saying is still true: "A woman convinced against her will, is of the same opinion still."

When everyone else in the office is sneezing and hacking, the most unpopular worker is the one who goes around boasting that he hasn't missed a day's work with a cold in the last 25 years.

If you checked into his case, you'd probably also find he hadn't had a merit raise in that time either. But he doesn't brag about that.

Memory plays tricks on us all, but no man grows so old as to forget the full name of the girl whose initials, along with his own, he carved in a tree when he was a boy.

When a woman finds the first gray hair in her head, she never admits it even to her closest friend for at least a month. It takes her that long to get used to the shock, and during that period she is pretty snappish and hard to get along with.

When we finally elect a woman to the White House, a grateful nation ought to do something for her husband, too— such as maybe building him a more comfortable doghouse.

Our subconscious minds sometimes give us warnings. For example if you have a hard time remembering your best girl's telephone number, maybe that's a mental hint she's not the right number for you.

You can be sure a man is an old-timer if he still puts salt in his beer. Few bartenders now even keep a salt shaker on the bar.

Show me a man who really likes broccoli, and I'll show you a man who also can be talked into making a down payment on the purchase of the Brooklyn Bridge.

There are some things in life that just don't go together. Ever see a horse-faced woman wearing a pony tail?

MEDIA DISCLOSES ANOTHER COVER—UP

Hard on the heels of the "Pentagon Papers" has come the exposure of another wartime deception.

Thanks to the fearless investigative initiative of a publication called the West Virginia Hillbilly, the story of the burning of Burning Springs, Va. (Later West Virginia), by Confederate soldiers on May 9, 1863, has now come to light.

Burning Springs, then called Oiltown, was a Yankee oil field on the Little Kanawha River in the very backyard of the Confederacy. It had a population of 10 to 15 thousand souls, hundreds of wells and a normal daily inventory of 300,000 barrels of oil, worth $1.5 million.

As one of the two existing oil fields in the world in 1863, its destruction should have been the biggest news story of the day it occurred. Yet the press services reported only that the raiders had fired 'the' oil well on the Little Kanawha, as if there were just one.

As the first military oil target in the history of warfare, the raid on Burning Springs ought to rate at least footnote mention in the history books. Yet what little information is available about the episode comes from a few obscure Confederate sources, even though speculation in oil was rampant in northern cities throughout the Civil War.

Why was the news suppressed, not only during but after the war?

The press blackout on May 9, 1863, has never been explained. There were no other military events on that day comparable to the destruction of 50 per cent of the world's oil-producing capacity.

The Battle of Chancellorsville had been fought the week before. General Grant was mired in the swamps around VIcksburg. All was quiet on the Potomac.

"Someone made a serious military blunder," accuses the Hillbilly forthrightly—"a blunder that has been successfully covered up for 100 years."

But now, at long last, the whole sorry affair has been blown sky-high, and let the chips fall where they may

NO DOUBT ABOUT IT, this is the age of youth. They've revolutionized our music, art, fashions and moral concepts. One thing they haven't changed is the appeal of beautiful gemstones.

There are some 2,000 identifiable gems of which some 200 are important. But as far as today's fashion is concerned there are just 20 gems that are top favorites.

Although early man did not have modern instruments to identify gemstones, he did put them in the right "pecking" order according to their hardness, durability, sparkle. The stone age ax, for example, was made of jade, the most durable of gems.

Typically, diamonds are the hardes gem; rubies the most chemically inert, and zircons are tops in thermal resistance. Following diamonds in order of hardness are corundum (the sapphire and the ruby; the sapphire and ruby stars; the Linde synthetic stars).

Then comes alexandrite, cats eye, Linde simulated diamonds, the topaz, spinel, beryl (emerald and Linde Emerald) zircon, garnet, tourmaline, amethyst and tiger's eye quartz chalcedony (onyx, blood stone, and sard) jade, peridot, spodumene, feldspar(moonstone), opal, turquoise, lapis, coral, pearl and shell.

The hardness of gemstones has always been of interest to some companies because of the rigid industrial requirements for cutting textile thread guides, various aerospace components, jewel bearings, and other fine equipment.

For example, Union Carbide began its research in synthetic gem materials back in 1939. As a result of its synthetic sapphires and rubies, the company was able to create special maser and laser crystals for use in science and industry, medicine and space.

FARMING THE FOREST

For a number of years, a technological revolution has been taking place in the U. S. timber industry. Leading forest products companies are taking on more and more the character of agricultural operations. They look upon land and trees much as a farmer looks upon land and crops. They recognize, as has the modern farmer, that every weapon of science must be utilized to make a fixed number of acres of land produce the products needed to meet the requirements of a growing number of people. In doing this, they are forced to improve upon nature, and this is no small task.

The chief forester of one company, in announcing a new program to study the chemical composition of the soils on the company's timberlands, recently remarked, "A continuing sense of urgency is pervading the field of growing and managing timber. We are in an era where we cannot rely on the forest's developing just in its naturai way. Advances in soil science and fertilizer availability mean we can take significant additional steps to intensify tree crop production and management." Another company describes how aerial fertilizing helps the forest mature 20 years faster. It notes that its foresters are doing everything they can to speed up growth without destroying the natural balance of nature. The company plans to grow 33 per cent more wood on the same land year after year in perpetuity.

Those who think of the forest products industry as an aggregation of loggers and whining saws sweeping through the mountains like a scourge are at least 50 years behind the times.

Washington-Merry-Go-Round

By Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON--Will Wilson, the cracker-barrel crimebuster, has been chased from his Justice Department job because of ties to the scandal-rocked financial empire of Texas wheeler-dealer Frank Sharp.

Now the beleaguered Wilson may find his name drawn into yet another Texas business scandal, although the former assistant attorney general vigorously denies any wrongdoing.

The second scandal involves the huge American National Insurance Company of Galveston, which has become a treasure chest of credit for Las Vegas gambling operations and a host of other questionable business propositions.

A group of disenchanted stockholders has filed multi-million dollar suits charging the men who control the company with using it as a private financial preserve.

Investigators working for the insurgent stockholders suspect that Will Wilson may have played a backstage role in the decline of the company. Here is the evidence their pre-trial investigation has uncovered:

American National is part of the well-known Moody Foundation of Texas whose trustees control the company. Until 1959, the trustees were all members of the Moody family and deadlocked two-to-two on most issues.

Wilson, then attorney general of Texas, sued the foundation to remove the trustees. The foundation then appointed three more trustees to avoid future deadlocks. Wilson approved the selections.

From then on, the Insurance Company went downhill. In early 1963, it got into a deal that proved to be of great benefit to Frank Sharp, who was then closely associated with Wilson. Wilson's term as Attorney General had expired and he was practicing law, mostly for Sharp.

A real estate firm had built some apartments in Sharp's development outside Houston using money borrowed from Sharp's bank. Along came American National and bought the mortgage from Sharp's bank.

$450,000 LOSS

A few years later, the real estate firm failed and American National took a $450,000 beating on the mortgage, a loss Sharp would have absorbed had not the insurance company got him off the hook.

During the Johnson Administration, American National's connections with Las Vegas gambling interests sparked a criminal investigation which was still in progress when Wilson took over as head of the Justice Department's criminal division under President Nixon.

Wilson denied any suggestions that he personally saw to it that the investigation came to an abrupt end.

In fact, he insists that he was interested in the case and tried to further it. "If anything had reached me on it, I would have pushed it on," he told us.

Wilson conceded there had been no indictments, nor was there any present likelihood of them.

He said he had nothing to do with the selection of the trustees of the Moody foundation, but dit intervene to break the deadlock and made no objections to the new trustees.

Further, he issisted he knew nothing of the curious real estate transaction involving American National and Frank Sharp's interests, although he was one of Sharp's principal advisers. "This is the first I've heard of this at all, Wilson said.

Footnote: The insurgent stockholders are in two groups. One is represented by Roy Cohn, the onetime protege of Sen. Joseph McCarthy, R.Wis. The other group has hired Mudge, Rose, Guthrie andAlexander, the firm of President Nixon and Attorney General John Mitchell. Needless to say, the Mudge, Rose attorneys are not voicing any suspicions of Will Wilson.

PACIFIC STORM CLOUDS

Ex-Interior Secretary Walter Hickel tells in his memoirs how Henry Kissinger downgraded Micronesia at a State Department meeting. Hickel quotes Kissinger as saying: "There are only 90,000 people out there. Who gives a damn?"

We charged in a recent report that the U.S. has botched its trusteeship of Micronesia, which includes the Pacific islands where Americans fought some of the most bitter battles of World War II. Now many of the islanders, once grateful to the U.S. for their liberation, would prefer to have the Japanese back.

Kissinger tells us he can't remember making the statement that Hickel attributes to him. It is contrary, he says, to his actual views. But it is all too typical of the who-gives--damn attitude of many officials, Republicans and Democrats alike, who have been administering Micronesia for the past 25 years.

The U.S., meanwhile has taken a sudden new interest in the Pacific islands. As the U.S. pulls back from Asia, these islands take on increasing strategic importance. Yet the neglected natives have been alienated, and the nationalism that has stirred people in other underveloped nations is now reaching Micronesia.

We have had access to some of the secret strategic studies on the Pacific islands. As far back as Jan. 11, 1968, the Central Intelligence Agency's William E. Colby warned at a strategy session that counter-insurgency could be expected in the Pacific.

Declare the secret minutes: "He mentioned that we will be facing problems in the Pacific islands within the next ten years, but that this is not an NSC-level problem yet."

He referred to the National Security Council, which helps the President prepare for crises. Today, not yet four years later, the Pacific islands are coming to the attention of the NSC.

Inside Labor

WASHINGTON-- It no longer is daring to talk on the tube, in the prints or in public places of intimacies, physical, psychical or financial. But in many circles it is the mark of a dirty mind to talk of treason.

Well, there is treason and to seek it out, to identify its objectives along gory, bomb-crated paths actually is the mark of mandatory, objective journalism. And a strong reason for a powerful Subversive Activities Control Board.

Those who still confuse treason with dissent do this nation an historic injustice. They are not with it today. They are not relevant. They equate radicalism with the outmoded American Communist Party of the era when the Soviets monopolized subversion and infiltration here.

Thus, when they talk of the revolution, they pooh-pooh the C.P. and its national committee because its Presidential ticket won little over 1,000 votes in 1968.

Today, the Communist Party ticket is headed by Gus Hall and Jarvis Tyner, national chairman of the Young Workers Liberation League. And they do have swinging power in something called the National Coordinating Committee for Trade Union Action and Democracy. But this is not the revolution. This is not at all what the fight now being fought here on the Hill is about.

True, Gus Hall's C.P.-U.S.A. gives the Kremlin the chance to boast of an American section. True, the C.P. theoreticians have guided many a Black Panther. And true, I do believe, Black Pantherite Eldridge Cleaver is returning "home" from his Algerian villa and ultra-modern propaganda compound to fight new Maoist trends to preserve the revolution for the creaking "apparat" of ancient times--Soviet communism of America in the '30s, '40s and very early '50s.

But there is a new bomb set. Few know of it. For example, one of those who seem to be unaware of the upheavals right under their handsome profiles is the Junior Senator from California, John Tunney. He'd have known better if he had listened carefully to his dad. In August he attacked the new powers which the White House had given the Subversive Activities Control Board on July 2.

Sen. Tunney urged the board's abolition. He charged that it would draw the curtain of fear over the Bill of Rights. I do believe he was thinking of dissent of olden times, workers' unemployment demonstrations and animal kingdom disagreements at universities. Certainly he could not have had in mind the relevant revolt such as is planned by the only Maoist Communist Party now in the U.S. -- the Revolutionary Union (RU). Recognized, that is, in documents available to the Senator. Documents showing that Peking did the recognizing, that Peking had a good- sized delegation of RUs over the mainland early in October, and and that Peking made it possible for his delegation to sit with none other than Chou En-lai.

And that Peking then brought the RU delegation together with the New York Young Lords leader and with others including some who almost two decades ago were accused of passing classified documents to Soviet agents. One ofthese is Frank Doe, once a U.S. Treasury employe who has been in Red China for a long time (a one-man American desk.)

In that group, too, were men once in the U.S. Progressive Labor Party who were among the first to take to Harlem's streets and roof-tops towar on the police.

They were all together on Oct. 5 with Chou and old Kuo Mo-jo, vice chairman of the Standing Committee of the national People's Congress. I've watched Kuo for a long time. It is his global assignment, untouched during the lethal Cultural Revolution, to subvert nationals across the world.

I select the Revolutionary Union here because it is typical of the new "communism." It was founded early in 1968 by veteran Communist Leibel Bergman and an avowed revolutionary, Prof. H. Bruce Franklin, then of Stanford U. Bergnam then had just returned from a long and covert stay in Peking. Prof. Franklin, at the time, had been directing the activities of a campus group named after its Chinese Communist counterpart, the Peninsula Red Guard.

The RU, once basically active in the San Francisco area, now has spread clandestinely, through collectives, to the Midwest, South and East. It is violent enough, but not enough for Franklin who believes in "revolution now," tomorrow morning or sooner. Last December he split from RU and launched the Venceremos (not to be confused with the youth brigade that cut cane each summer in Cuba.)

RU's objectives are a United Front, development of a revolutionary working class unity and "leadership in the struggle to organize a new national Communist Party, based on Marxism-Leninism, Mao Tse-tung thought, which would lead to the overthrow of the U.S. government by force and violence.

Thus, they go in for "proficiency training" -- accumulation of weapons, practicing guerrilla warfare and firearms handling. In the early days of social revolution, the organizers talked of barricades (social) but now the RU talks of this "proficiency training" with deadly seriousness.

And they are not just playing Town House. So, why should there not be a Subversive Activities Control Board?

Great Cripplers---PART V

Cerebral Palsy Major Enemy Of Early Life

Cerebral Palsy Two Takes

Editor's note: One way or another, cerebral palsy affects two million or more family members nationwide. The following article, final installment of a five-part series on "The Great Cripplers," describes efforts to prevent the disease.

By FRANK CAREY
AP Science Writer

LA JOLLA, Calf. (AP) — At the University of California campus here, a researcher studies the gestation period of a variety of animals.

At the university's Berkeley campus upstate, another scientist explores the effect of air and water pollution on unborn infants.

Both work toward preventing cerebral palsy, the crippler caused by brain or other nervous system damage before birth, at delivery or early in life.

Matched against the other great cripplers—arthritis, cerebral stroke, muscular dystrophy, multiple sclerosis—cerebral palsy is the major enemy of early life.

No known cure exists for cerebral palsy, nor a knowndrug or other treatment to attack directly the disease process and reverse significantly its toll.

But an Associated Press survey shows that scientists lately have developed new, though guarded, optimism that they may be on the trail toward eventually preventing a significant number of cerebral palsy cases.

Meanwhile, much can be done to rehabilitate sufferers.

Chief hallmark of cerebral palsy is absent or impaired control of the body's voluntary muscles such as those that move the legs and arms.

Other signs include convulsive seizures, spasms, mental retardation, abnormal sensation and perception, and impairment of sight, hearing and speech.

At least 750,000 Americans, and possibly as many as one million, are victims of cerebral palsy. Of the known total, more than 250,000 suffers are under 21 and at least 25,000 babies are born with it annually.

Estimated national cost cost for care and rehabilitation is at least $500 million. "Two million or more family members share the heavy emotional and financial burdens the disease imposes," says the volunteer United Cerebral Palsy Association.

While cerebral palsy strikes early, most of its victims live normal life spans although some are confined to wheel chairs or beds or crutches.

The cause in about one-third of cerebral palsy cases is unknown, but of those known, the chief culprits are prematurity, difficulty of breathing in the newborn, complications in labor and delivery, and accidents resulting in head injuries.

Major emphasis in research programs sponsored by government and voluntary health agencies is on prevention.

That's where the researchers at UC's La Jolla and Berkeley campuses come in.

Dr. Kenneth J. Ryan, an obstetrician at La Jolla, is perhaps the leading developer of the theory that many premature births might be prevented if ways could be found to control artificially and maintain the vital hormonal relationship in the womb between mother and embryo.

Dr. Ryan ,believes the relationship may play a key role in preserving the normal 267-day gestational period of humans.

So he has been exploring the gestation period of rats, monkeys, armadillos, sows and hedgehogs. Of special interest to him are female elephants because they are able to produce offspring without special help during gestation from the male hormone progesterone, which virtually all other mammals seem to require.

At Berkeley, Dr. Eddie Wei, an environmental health, psyiologist, is attempting to determine whether low doses of metals present in the environment, such as lead, mercury and manganese, might cause prenatal or post-birth nervous system diseases.

Dr. Wei stresses that no one knows yet whether nervous system hazard exists from low doses of such metals.

But he adds that high doses of the metals can be harmful. Dr. Wei noted, as an example, the mental retardation of some slum children struck by lead poisoning after nibbling chips of lead-based paint peeling from walls.

Federal and private research gains in the battle against cerebral palsy include development of:

—A highly effective vaccine against German measles, a usually mild disease but one that can cause cerebral palsy or other congenital defects in an unborn child if the motor gets it during the first three, and sometimes during the second three, months of pregnancy.

—A serum which promises to prevent many cases of cerebral palsy caused by the RH blood factor incompatibility between mother and fetus.

CAPTAIN GETS DEGREE

UNIVERSITY PARK, Pa. (AP) — Capt. Alfred F. Blair, who left college 31 years ago to join the Navy, finally got his bachelor of arts degree at Penn State.

The Pittsburgh native, now commanding officer and director of the Antisubmarine Warfare Tactical School in Norfolk, Va., took a nine-month furlough from the Navy to enroll at the Ongontz campus of the university near Philadelphia. While at sea he worked on correspondence courses and he studied languages with private tutors.

Capt. Blair, 54, said "I wanted to wrap up that college degree before all five of my children beat me to it."

Ann Landers

Wives Work To Keep Retired Husbands Busy

Dear Ann Landers: I have read in the papers about people dying from botulism after eating contaminated tuna and contaminated potato soup -- both canned. Is there any way a consumer can tell in advance whether or not food is contaminated? You explain everything in such simple language that you are positively the best source of education in the country. Please help us.---Uptight Housewife

Dear U.H.: The best advice I can offer is simply this: NEVER taste canned or smoked food which appears to be off-color or smells "peculiar." Teach your children to exerc-se this caution also. T he botulin toxin is deadly that a cupful could easily kill everyone in the United States. If the contents of a can is suspicious, don't throw it out. Take it back to the store where it was purchased and let the manager know.

Also: Do not use the contents of a can that has bulges or leaks. The contents may or may not be poisonous, but it is never worth the risk. Such cans also hould be returned to the store. And remember that proper cooking is a defense against most food poisoning. Finally, if you think you've eaten contaminated food, don't try to treat yourself. Go to the nearest hospital immediately.

Dear Ann Landers: I have never heard such stupid advice in my life as what you gave the man with the overweight wife. You said maybe HE wanted a divorce and used her fat as an excuse to unload her. Did it ever occur to you that maybe SHE wanted an excuse to drive her husband away? I assure you that is closer to the truth.

Any wife who thinks so little of her husband that she would continue to stuff herself like a pig deserves no sympathy. I have observed these horrors in the supermarket loading their carts with soft drinks, potato chips, ice cream, pies, cakes --all of the things they shouldn't have. A woman who will not give up the fun of eating rich food so she can look like a human instead of an elephant does not deserve a husband'a love.

Imagine carrying candy in her purse, like a baby with a pacifier. Disgusting! When I read that I blew up. And you come out with the absurd statement that some men love their wives in spite of their fat. How could they? --Santa Cruz

Dear Santa: They could because they attach more importance to other things, such as emotional support, intelligence, ability to communicate, dependability, devotion, and let's not forget a sense of humor and a cheerful disposition.

Dear Ann Landers: "Retired Husband In Modesto" might sound like a "Pussycat" to YOU, but I'll bet his wife has another name for him.

So he doesn't want to be a flunkey or an errand boy? Did it ever occur to him that the only way his wife can get him out from under her feet is to send him someplace?

I live in St. Petersburg, which is a haven for the retired, and we wives help each other survive by exchanging ideas on how to keep the old boy busy and out of our hair. The best plan is to give him specific responsibilities. For example: lawn or garden work, taking care of the car, vacuuming, waxing the floors, minor carpenter repairs, window washing.

Demeaning? Heavens no! It takes a big man to do little things and those "little" things can add up to a lot of help. Spread the word, Ann. --Learned In Time

Dear Learned: consider it spread.

Sikeston Ministers Favor

Early Christian Education Start

By JUDY GAZETTE

Four Sikeston ministers were asked to comment on Christian education for youngsters. When should it begin? And what is the validity in conducting separate worship services for young people during adult worship Sunday morning?

The Rev. Durward Penry, pastor of First Christian Church, commented:

"Christian education should begin when babies first come into the world -- at home. You don't wait until a child is X number of years old to start tending to its physical needs. Neither should you wait to start tending to its spiritual needs.

"If children are brought to church as infants and grow up in that environment, there's no problem later on with the experience of being left -- such as at age three or four.

"And if the child's family attends regularly, he sees the fellowship and involvement and wantes to be a part of it. Then by the time the child is six or seven, he realizes that, in our church, being baptized is a big step toward being a part of the church body. He'll soon ask "When can I be baptized?' "

Rev. Penry explained that at age 10 or 11 the children are urged, but not required, to attend classes for the purpose of giving insight into the workings of the church, its history and some of the things expected of them as Christians.

"Now this is only if they express the desire to know," he said. "I conduct the classes myself, taking as much or as little time as is needed to answer their questions. Then when they understand their obligations and the church's, they can be baptized.

"As far as separate worship services are concerned, we have had them here, but the problem is finding and keeping adequate leadership.

"I think it's a good idea, because in a Sunday morning congretation you are faced with ministering to many different groups -- the very young, the very old, various social and economic levels, different levels of intelligence -- and it's difficult to preach without scatter - shooting. That is, rather than aiming at one target, you find yourself trying to hit many different targets. Therefore, any time you can isolate one of these groups and concentrate your efforts into one specific area, I think it's good."

The Rev. Erny McDonough, director of education at First Assembly of God Church expressed similar views:

"Since we're creatures of habit, the earlier we can begin teaching children to assemble -- Sunday school and church -- the earlier they begin learning and working together. Bringing them into a group gives them more than they could get at home.

"Separate worship services, to a point, are good. We have a children's worship hour on Sunday morning during regular church for children through 12. They are read a story that portrays a Bible scripture and they sing songs. But during the other scheduled worship services, on Sunday night and Wednesday night, children are brought into the auditorium. This is good for them, too, because they need to learn to sit still, be quiet and have respect for God's house.

"Just like school, we could teach all ages in one room on one level, but some of it would escape the younger children."

"Christian education should begin at the beginning of life," the Rev. Fr. Robert Schumacher, pastor of St. Francis Xavier Catholic church, said. From the very beginning, parents are involved in giving a child an outlook on life -- either favorable or unfavorable. In the same way, a child sees the parents' attitudes towards Christianity and the Church.

"As you probably know, Christian education is the main reason we as Catholics favor church - affiliated schooling for our children. In this way, the formal teaching is integrated into their everyday lives. In a less formal way, however, religious education can begin by teaching a child the real meaning of Christmas from the view of his faith. This sort of teaching, coupled with Bible schooling on Sunday morning is a good way to guide pre - school children.

"On the subject of separate services for children," he continued, "I really couldn't evaluate. It is done in some of the larger parishes, and with good results, but here, since I am the only priest, it's impossible."

In supplying background information on religious education, the Rev. Tom Bass, pastor of Hunter Memorial First Presbyterian Church, said, "The church school movement began sometime in the early 1800s, and in most churches, there are divisions, such as grade levels or division of boys and girls, and I think there is a 100 per cent need of formal training. But it's important to recognize that sometimes with these youngsters, our goals are so vague, it's almost ineffectual.

"I personally think Christian education should last from cradle to grave. In the early years, it should be the prime task of the home to develop relationships between a child and his parents and a child and his siblings. It must begin at home. The church simply supplements this development

"Recognition of exactly what it means to be a Christian comes later, after formal church school classes begin. In other words, to sustain the experience of becoming a Christian, I feel an academic background is just as important as the emotional experience, because in the beginning, children are impressed but have very little depth in their thinking."

"Separate services?" he pondered. "I personally don't like them. I think the idea of group fellowship is lost when you break the worship service into different areas. And, after all, fellowship is what Christianity is all about."

Sunday Frowns Among Youth Church Gripes

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Smiles should replace frowns on Sunday morning, suggested Mickey Harrison, one of several young persons who were sounding off their impressions of the church-in unabashed terms.

"You go in there on Sunday morning and everybody's frowning, the deacon's frowning, the elder's frowning—it sort of gets me down," said Harrison of Coffeyville, Kan.

"Next time, smile a little. Be happy. God loves you." The observation was part of two hours of wide-open criticism and appeals by youth delegates Sunday at the biennial assembly of the Christian Church&Disciples of Christ.

Debby McAfee of Little Rock, Ark., said that older people in the Church chronically refused to deal with hard questions asked by youths.

"They say accept it, shut up," she said. "Well, you're going to have to start giving some answers. And nobody is going to tell me to shut up."

More than 5,000 older church men and women were present at Louisville's Convention Center and frequently applauded the youngsters.

Several commended the 1.5million-member Church for declaring earlier that it stands "against war and for peace."

Although omitting a proposed section that would have identified the denomination as a "peace church" akin to Quakers and other pacificst religious groups, the approved resolution upheld members right to hold that position.

Paul Effington of Memphis, Tenn., said college students feel ignored by the Church.

"Weve found that what you've taught us—of love, brotherhood and peace—you don't try to do, and tell us not to do it. Well, you better start doing it. We've had our fill of talk and are ready for action."

Ban On Church Chimes Arouses Controversy

CHICAGO (AP) — The Rev. Warren Mueller reluctantly has silenced the chimes of his church and the Chicago Noise Pollution Board which made him do it may find it has opened a Pandora's box.

For 22 years the carillon at St. Peter's United Church of Christ was sounded at quarterhour intervals from 8 a.m. to 9 p.m. and was heard over a oneblock residential area on Chicago's Northwest Side.

"I thought everybody loved it," said the Rev. Mr. Mueller. "Then the noise pollution thing came up on a complaint of some residents. The next thing I knew, I was ticketed three weeks ago."

The Rev. Mr. Mueller said the only time the chimes have sounded since then was for a decibel reading by the company that installed them and a week ago Sunday for "a world-wide communion service."

The Rev. Mr. Mueller found some sympathy in court Tuesday. He appeared to answer two complainants and he carried with him a petition signed by 3,400 residents who said they wanted the electrically operated carillon turned back on.

More than 200 persons gathered to hear the proceedings in Circuit Court.

Judge Vincent W. Tondryk took one look at the noisy crowd and requested a pretrial hearing in his chambers.

Scripture: Isaiah. 61, Ephesians 2: 11-19; Colassians 1.21-23

GOD HEALS BROKEN HUMANITY

God has been viewed from many angles in our current series of lessons. To some He is a God of battle, to others a God of peace. He may be a stern, avenging judge; He may be a God of mercy.

Unfortunately, too many consider Him to be associated with history, thus lacking any real role in our contemporary society. These are the individuals who are upset by the rock opera, "Jesus Christ Superstar" a production that tells the story in today's language.

In times of extreme difficulty, God sends help. Isaiah appeared before the broken-hearted people of his day to bring them comfort.

"Ancient ruin shall be rebuilt," Isaiah says, and "Foreigners shall serve as shepherds of your flocks, and aliens shall till your land and tend your vines."

In the New Testament Paul tells the Colassians who were estranged from God that, "by Christ's death in His body of flesh and blood God has reconciled you to Himself, so that He may present you before Himself as dedicated men, without blemish and innocent in His sight."

Times have not changed. We have our problems and we still turn to God for guidance. Unfortunately, we tend to lose our sensitivity to the poor, to war victims, to those who suffer from disasters in foreign countries.

If we don't see such events take place we don't really "feel" the consequences as we should. It is difficult for one who eats three good meals daily to comprehend the pressing need for food to feed the other half of the world that goes to bed each night hungary.

There are those who remind us that Jesus said we should feed the people. He never directed that billions of dollars be spent to send men to the moon.

Welfare problems today top the lists of many federal and state agencies. Officials debate the responsibility involved the amount of relief necessary and the requirements for eligibility.

Broken humanity is visible all about us, two thousand years after Christ spoke of similar incidents. Christ came to us voicing hope for all who suffered.

How have we responded?

For centuries we have had the afflicted with us. For years we have placed such persons in homes and hospitals away from the rest of humanity.

Today we recognize such problems in the open, sharing the warmth and fellowship that comes from belief in God. Frank Crane once wrote in his newspaper column that "Jesus was the only teacher tall enough to see over the fences that divide the human race into compartments."

As communities encounter problems affecting the people they must define the difficulties, set specific goals. God would have us work in groups to attack these sores in our society.

But we must act now. As Peter and the Apostles say in "Jesus Christ Superstar"—

"Hang on Lord, we're gonna fight for you."

Graham Sees Good Impact In Rock Opera

THE BIBLE

1. The Creation

"In the beginning God created the heaven and the earth. And the earth was without form, and void. And darkness was on the face of the deep. And the spirit of God moved upon the face of the water. And God said let there be light and there was light."

Genesis 1:1,2,3.

God separated the light and darkness and called it day and night. And it was the first day. The second day He divided the waters and the firmament and called the firmament heaven. The water was gathered together under one place and land appeared. They were called Seas and Earth and on the earth was grass and trees, and it was the end of the third day.

The fourth day He created the Sun and Moon and stars to give light to the earth.

The fifth and sixth day He created all living creatures. The birds of the air, the fish in the sea and all the animals of the earth and also man and woman.

"And God saw everything that He had made and, behold, it was very good . . ."

Genesis 1:31

"And God blessed the seventh day and sanctified it, because that in it He had rested from all His work which God created and made."

National League Dominates AP All-Star Team

NEW YORK (AP) — The National League dominated the 1971 Associated Press Major League All-Star baseball team by landing players on all but two berths on the 10-man squad.

Mickey Lolich of the Detroit Tigers was named the lefthanded pitcher ahead of Vida Blue of the Oakland A's and Tony Oliva of the Minnesota Twins was chosen to one of the outfield spots as the AL representatives.

The world champion Pittsburgh Pirates and the Chicago Cubs each placed two players in the annual poll of sports writers and sportscasters announced Thursday in which 285 participated prior to the league playoffs and World Series.

The Pirates landed outfielder Willie Stargell and catcher Manny Sanguillen on the squad while the Cubs are represented by second baseman Glenn Beckert and right-handed pitcher Ferguson Jenkins. The Chicago hurler beat out Tom Seaver of the New York Mets. The other outfield berth went to slugger Hank Aaron of the Atlanta Braves while the rest of the infield consisted of first baseman Lee May of the Cincinnati Reds, third baseman Joe Torre of the St. Louis Cardinals and shortstop Maury Wills of the Los Angeles Dodgers.

Aaron, who enjoyed a banner season with a .327 batting average, a career high 47 homers and 118 runs batted in, drew the most votes, 230. Stargell, the National League home run king with 48, was next in the outfield voting with 208.

Oliva, the American League batting champion with a .337 average, was far back in third place with a 180 votes.

Beckert, who batted .342 ran away with the second base berth, drawing 223 while runnerup Cookie Rojas of the Kansas City Royals collected 15. Beckert is the lone repeater from last year.

In the closest balloting, Wills, who batted .281 and was a Dodger sparkplug, nipped Fred Patek of the Royals, 66-53.

Baltimore, the American League champion, failed to place a player on a the first team. Third baseman Brooks Robinson and outfielder Frank Robinson, though, made the second team.

Roberto Clemente, who led the Pirates to their World Series triumph, placed fourth in the outfield voting with 92. He was followed by Bobby Murcer of the New York Yankees, 56, and Frank Robinson, 36.

Sanguillen, another Pirate Series star and .319 hitter during the regular season, won the catching spot by drawing 180 votes to 51 for Johnny Bench of the Reds.

Torre, the NL's Leading Hitter (.363) and RBI-man (137), collected 212 votes at third base compared to 57 for Brooks Robinson.

May, the Cincinnati slugger who batted .278, outdrew Detroit Tiger first baseman Norm Cash, 88-51.

Lolich, who won 25 and lost 14, paced the AL in strkeouts (308) and compiled a 2.92 earned run average, outpolled Blue, the early season sensation, 143-123.

Blue finished with the best ERA in the AL, 1.82, and registered a 24-8 won-lost record along with 301 strikeouts.

Jenkins, who had a 24-13 record and 263 strikeouts, drew 127 votes compared to Seaver's 84 for the righty pitching berth. Seaver led the NL in strikeouts with 289 and ERA with 1.76 while rolling up a 20-10 mark.

Bengals Make Easy Work Of Dogs

CAPE GIRARDEAU-- Central high school continued its march toward its third straight northern division football championship Thursday night at the expense of the Sikeston Bulldogs. It scored to a 49-20 victory before 3,000 homecoming fans, who braved threatening rain at Houck stadium.

The game was securily tucked away in the Cape Girardeau Bengals victory column after the first quarter. Cape's defense forced two fumbles in that 12 minute which the offense quickly converted to touchdowns and the host enjoyed a 21-0 lead.

Speedy Calvin Sides got the host's scoring started with a 30-yard jaunt midway in the first quarter after a bad punt by the Bulldogs set the Bengals up on the 40-yard line from where they crossed in four plays. That score came one minute and a half after the Bengal offense got its hands on the ball for the first time.

Only 57 seconds later, Cape's defense began its work and forced a fumble on the 10-yard line from where Bruce Fee trotted in from seven yards out on the second play to spot the host a 14-0 lead.

Brad Buchanan, a light 145-pound tackel, got credit for the third touchdown of the quarter when he fell on a lose ball in the end zone after a Sikeston fumble.

The score balooned to 28-0 midway in the second period when Paul Schermann raced from one sideline to the other after hauling in a pass from Don Zimmer to score on a 51-yard pass play. After that touchdown and Steve Lee's fourth extra point boot the game was just a long drawnout affair for the fans, who expected to set in on a defensive battle.

The renowned defense of the Central Tigers held the Bulldogs at bay in the rushing game but was unable to stop the passing combination of Junior Bill Colwick to fellow classman Glen Guttenfelder, who teamed for three. TDs.

The Central Tigers are 3-0 in conference play and the Bulldogs are 2-2- and 3-4 overall.

Sikeston marched behind the passing of Colwick to Guffenfelder and the running of Brian Montgomery and withthe help of a interference penalty on Cape. Colwick passed to Guttenfelder from five yards out and Sikeston had six points. Cape blocked the extra point try and the score was 28-6.

Sikeston picked up five downs with he aid of penalities. It had six via the air and one rushing.

It looks as if the Bulldogs were going to get back into the game at this point but Cape took the kickoff on the second play from scrimmage Zimmer and fooled the defense and fired a pass to Gary Slattery for a 70-yard run into the end zone. Lee kicked his fifth extra point and Cape led 35-6.

The Bulldogs did not give up. Colwick hit Guttenfelder for a 50-yard touchdown. This time Larry Voliva kicked the extra point and the score was 35-13 at the half.

The Bulldogs were minus 19 yards rushing in the first half with 132 passing. Cape passed only twice in the first half and completed one for the 70-yard score.

After neither team could move the ball on the first two series of downs the Tigers intercepted a Colwick pass at the Sikeston 25-yard line and punched across the goal line on the running of Sides and Scherman with Schermann getting the TD from the one-yard line. Lee kicked the extra point and Cape led 42-13.

Sikeston came right back as Colwick hit Guttenfelder on the Bulldog 40-yard line and Guttenfield ran 60 yards for his third TD. Voliva kicked his extra point and the score was 42-20 as the Third quarter closed.

Another fumble, at the Sikeston 44 yard line cut short a Bulldog drive. Paul Schermann used three running plays to hit pay dirt for the seventh TD. Lee added another extra point and Cape led 49-20. Cape Central used its reserves for the final minutes of the fourth period.

Good Quail, Rabbit Numbers In Tennessee

NASHVILLE, Tenn. -- An extremely good crop of quail and rabbits will be on hand for Tennessee hunters when they open the season November 6, according to officials of the Tennessee Game and Fish Commission.

"We have had excellent weather conditions during the spring and summer, and as a result expect small game populations better than we have experienced in past years," Roy Anderson, Chief of the Commission's Game Management Division, said following field surveys by his biologists.

Anderson indicated the best quail concentrations are found in southern middle and west Tennessee, while the central basin area in middle Tennessee sports the best rabbit populations.

Anderson said the total quail population in Tennessee is estimated to be better than 6,000,000 birds.

In a departure from past years, the November 6 quail and rabbit season opening is some two weeks earlier than the traditional Thanksgiving opener, and and officials are optimistic about the hunters' chance for success.

"We feel hunters will be taking an extra 200,000 quail and about one - half million more rabbits due to the early season opening," Anderson said, pointing out that these birds will be harvested instead of being wasted as they have in past years.

While there will be some young birds taken by hunters, the proportion should be about one juvenile bird for every seven adult birds, Anderson indicated.

Good Season Expected

If your's a bow hunter, shotgunner or rifleman, get ready for a hunting season with plenty of action. The August survey of hunting conditions and species made by the conservation department, Winchester-Western Division of Olin industries indicates a banner hunting season across the nation and especially in Missouri.

The deer herds in Missouri are large, according to the survey.

Hunters will have one day less in which to hunt than last year, when in 10 days hunters claimed a record 28,290 animals. The nine-day 1971 season, which starts Nov. 13, will be under a system of management units. Shooting hours will be from 6:30 a.m. to 5 p.m.

ROLLA -- Going hunting this year? Got your gun cleaned and your hunting permit purchased? With the opening of deer season, many Missourians will be packing their gear and heading for their favorite hunting spots with high hopes of getting a big one.

Along with their rifles, compasses, and hunting equipment, most experienced sportsmen take along a topographic map showing their favorite hunting spots, notes Dr. Wallace B. Howe, State Geologist and Director of the Missouri Geological Survey in Rolla, Mo. Although these maps do not have specific markings showing the actual location of deer (as few people request), they can be used to pinpoint woodlands (which might provide cover for game) or open spots (which could serve as feeding areas).

Topographic maps give a picture of the terrain with clearings, wooded areas, houses, barns, bridges, streams, springs and ponds shown as well as roads and trails. With a little practice in reading contours, a hunter can estimate the height of each hill, the depth of each valley, and the approximate elevation and slope of the ground. He can figure how far he will have to walk from one likely looking hunting spot to another with little trouble.

This Missouri Geological Survey now markets more than 25,000 topographic maps each year, most of which are shipped by mail to an astonishing variety of customers. They are used by city planners, geologists, surveyors, salesmen, and many others as well as by hunters, trappers, and fishermen. The area which can normally be covered during a day's hunting or hiking is shown on a 1:24,000-scale topographic quadrangle map (one inch on the map represents 2,000 feet on the ground). A map drawn on this scale may cover about 60 square miles, depending on the latitude.

According to Dr. Howe, topographic maps are ideal for planning hunting stratigraphy in advance. Even the most inexperienced outdoorsman has little trouble in identifying access roads, jeep and pack trails, or old logging roads. Well planned hunting trips are generally much more interesting because the hunter knows exactly where he is going and what to expect. Even swamps and marshes (which are often the haunts of deer, turkey, beaver and other animals) are identified by appropriate symbols. When deer season is over, topographic maps can still be used for planning camping expeditions, float trips, hikes, or even Sunday afternoon outings.

Hunters on the way to their favorite hunting spots may stop at the Missouri Geological Survey at Buehler Park in Rolla, Mo. and get a map for 50 cents. Prepaid orders will be filled by addressing the Survey, Box 250, Rolla, Mo. 65401. If the name of a certain topographic quadrangle map is not known, a postcard may be forwarded to this same address for a free Index to Topographic Maps.

Oklahoma makes a Wish and Kansas State Coach Vince Gibson says a prayer Saturday.

He has a point. Oklahoma has won five straight with a powerhouse crew that includes quarterback Jack Mildren and halfbacks Joe Wylie and Greg Pruitt, who has gained 421 yards rushing in the last two games.

''They're unbelievable,'' says Gibson. "They're a super football team. They have super speed."

They also have more confidence than last year, according to Gibson.

''That's the big difference between Oklahoma last year and this,'' said Gibson. "A fumble doesn't bother them because they know they can come back. They can't get quite excited about us after they way we've been stinking up the place the last few weeks."

The Wildcats have a 2-4 record after straight losses to Colorado, Kansas and Iowa State.

Nebraska, 6-0, the nation's No. 1-ranked team, visits Oklahoma State 3-1-1 in another big Saturday match. The mighty Cornhuskers held Kansas to a minus 42 yards rushing last week.

Third-ranked Michigan, 6-0, which has posted three shutouts in six games, takes on Minnesota 3-3; No. 4 Alabama, 6-0, hosts Houston, 4-1; fifth-ranked Auburn, 5-0, tackles Clemson, 2-3; No. 6 Notre Dame, 5-0, plays Southern California, 2-4; seventh-rated Penn State, 5-0, plays Texas Christian, 2-2-1; No. 8 Georgia, 6-0, meets Kentucy, 1-5; ninth-ranked Arkansas, 5-1, tackles North Texas State and No. 10 Stanford, 5-1, entertains Washington State.

In the Second Ten, it's No. 11 Colorado against Missouri; Wisconsin at No. 12 Ohio State; Arizona State, tied for No. 14, at New Mexico; Dayton at No. 14 Toledo; 16th-rated Texas against Rice; No. 17 Purdue at Illinois; 18th ranked Tennessee versus Mississippi State; No. 19 Duke at Navy and No. 20 Air Force at Colorado State.

IMPRESSIVE FIGURES

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The most impressive attendance figures in sports history is the total of 277,750 paid admissions for the three 1959 World Series games played in the Los Angeles Coliseum between the Dodgers and the Chicago White Sox.

All three games were on free television in Los Angeles. The second and third games were played on Monday and Tuesday afternoons, respectively.

Perry Favors Blue For Cy Young Award

KANSAS CITY---Vida Blue, Mickey Lolich or Wilbur Wood?

This was the question put to Minnesota Twins righhander Jim Perry, 1970 American League winner of the Cy Young Award, during the Twins last visit of the campaign to Kansas City.

Whom does Perry feel should be his successor to pitching's highest honor?

"I'd have to go with Vida Blue," Jim said before theTwins final sunday morning chapel service of the season. "It's a hard choice to make among three excellent pitchers, but I feel the key factor is that Blue helped his team to a fast start. And that's crucial. Lolich (Detroit Tiger ace) and Wood (Chicago knuckleballer) contributed to their teams' strong finishes. But by then Vida had helped make Oakland a sho-in for the division title."

Perry reflected on the season with staff members from theFellowship of Christian Athletes national headquarters here who were conducting the chapel service for the Twins. The Twins and the Chicago Cubs have major league baseball's most active chapel programs, in which the players organize Sunday services during the road trips. Perry and pitcher Jim Kaat head up the Twins' service while Don Kessinger, Randy Hundley, J.C. Martin and Phil Regan sparkplug the Cub's program.

"At all levels of baseball I've made a habit of going to church," said Perry, the unaffected country boy from North Carolina. "A business man should never be too busy to worship. A pro ballplayer is no different. Our Sunday hours are difficult, but we can and do make time to worship."

The Twins average from 10 to 25 men at the services throughout the season. In Kansas City slugger Harmon Killebrew, outfielder Jim Holt, broadcasters Halsey Hall and Herb Carneal and traveling secretary Howard Fox were among those who listened to FCA recording artist Ray Hildebrand speak and sing before Perry went out to win his 17th game.

"It was a rough season for us," said Perry of the team which won back to back western division titles before falling on hard times. "There wer injuries, ineffectiveness in the bullpen and a lack of hitting at the right times. We lost over 30 games after being tied or ahead in the seventh or later.

"I believe I threw well this year. I think winning 17 games for a club going like ours is not bad. With a few breaks I could have won 20 again (24 last year). In one spell I went ten games without a win and in five of those starts we didn't score.

"My Christian faith really kept me going this season. In times of personal frustration I just know things are going to work out and get better. A lot of guys don't have faith going for them -- and some of them just can't cope with the tough times."

Perry, at 34, hopes to have "another five years left." He feels the Twins who sat on a pat hand last winter, will make some noise in the trading market. As for himself, he spent more time on the road last winter after winning the Young award than he did during the season. He plans to get in his annual hunting trip to Wyoming, speak in a number of churches and spend much more time with his family.

Much of Jim's spiritual growth is attributed to former teammates Al Worthington and Jerry Kindall, and the smooth lefty Kaat. This was added to a religious foundation built in his early years in which he went seven years without missing Sunday School and is still told by his parents every time he visits home, "Behave yourself, go to church and honor the Lord."

Missouri Pros Picked To Lose

NEW YORK (AP) — The Washington Redskins, the only unbeaten team in the National Football League, will get their toughest test of the season Sunday—and they will pass it with a victory over the Kansas City Chiefs.

In the other big game of the weekend, the Minnesota Vikings will eke out a victory over the Baltimore Colts.

That's how it looks to this picker who was 10-3 last week for a three-week total of 26-12-1.

Picking 'em:

Washington 24, Kansas City 23—with Larry Brown and Charley Harraway, Washington has the running that will allow Bill Kilmer to pass against and make the Chiefs the Redskins' sixth straight victim. Kansas City has the home field and that old standby—momentum—after a season-opening loss.

Minnesota 20, Baltimore 17—Minnesota's defense against Baltimore's running game, with the Vikings' coming out on top in this meeting two once-beaten powers on Monday night.

San Diego 31, Buffalo 21—the only thing different this week for winless Buffalo is that this game is on a Saturday night.

Detroit 31, Chicago 6—Detroit will eventually wear down a good Chicago defens which should get little chance to rest. Because of injuries Chicago will go with third-string quarterback Bobby Douglass.

Oakland 24, Cincinnati 21—Daryle Lamonica and his Oakland playmates know that they can break away from a tie with Kansas City should the Chiefs fall to Washington. The Bengals are always troublesome. They also are 1-4.

Miami 31, New York Jets 14—Third-string quarterback Bob Davis got the Jets past Baltimore and they tied Miami earlier this season. But now Bob Griese and the Dolphins appear to be in gear.

Los Angeles 23, Green Bay 10—The Rams beat San Francisco and Atlanta on the road and should have a happy homecoming against Green Bay, especially with quarterback Roman Gabriel apparently in good form and defensive end Deacon Jones back after missing two games.

Cleveland 34, Denver 10—Cleveland has the passing of Bill Nelsen and the running of Leroy Kelly and Bo Scott. And the Browns are healthy, Denver is not.

San Francisco 24, St. Louis 20—The hot-and-cold tendecies of the two clubs make this one a tough game to pick. But John Brodie's arm and the hip injury of St. Louis safety Larry Wilson give the 49ers an edge.

New Orleans 24, Atlanta 17—with rookie quarterback Archie Manning, who plays as though he stills thinks his opponents are college teams, and a good defense, the Saints are too much for Atlanta, which is expected to start Dick Shiner at quarterback in place of Bob Berry who has a pulled hamstring.

Dallas 45, New England 10—The poor Patriots got Detroit and Baltimore rebounding from defeats and were clobbered. Now then get Dallas coming off an upset loss to New Orleans.

Pittsburgh 27, Houston 17—The Steelers might have the Sunday-after-Monday night blues, but Terry Bradshaw's passing and their defensive line figure to stop Houston, still looking to get untracked.

New York Giants 24, Philadelphia 21—This might be the Eagles best chance for a victory all season, but it won't happen.

YOU BE THE QUARTERBACK

By Paul (Bear) Bryant
Head Coach, University of Alabama
Compliments of
Wal—Mart Discount Center

The veteran North Carolina defense has knocked down several passes thrown by you, the Wake Forest quarterback. Deciding to pass on your own 29-yard line, second down and one, you wonder whether to fade quickly back and throw or to call a play action pass with a run faked before fading. So far as the trajectory of the pass is concerned, which is true:

1. With play action, you can throw ball on a line rather than lobbing it over defenders?
2. Fading back quickly enables you to throw ball on a line?
3. You should lob the ball no matter which pass you call?
4. There's no difference in trajectory between play action pass and one with quarterback quickly fading?

Answer

No. 1. With play action, ball can be thrown on line. Linebackers are key and play action on second down and one pulls them into line.

Northern Missouri Cities Prepare For Goose Festivals

JEFFERSON CITY, -- For the past few weeks, tens of thousands of Canada, snow and blue geese have moved into Missouri.

According to Ken White, outdoor editor, of the Missouir Tourism Commission, there should be a record number of hunters, birdwatchers and tourists viewing these majestic birds this year.

The two Federal Wildlife refuges in north Missouri, Squaw Creek near Mound City, and Swan Lake near Sumner, will be the resting area for hundreds of thousands of geese this fall and winter.

This year the Missouri waterfowl season opens October 31, and in conjunction with the opening, the two towns are busy making plans for the influx of visitors both feathered and otherwise.

Sumner, known as the wild goose capital of the world, will hold their 17th annual Wild Goose Festival October 29,30, and 31.

During the three day event, sponsored by the Sportsmans Club of Sumner, a carnival atmosphere will prevail. The festival will include everything from a baby show to a Queen contest to a Goose Calling contest. The celebration promises to furnish fun and entertainment for the entire family.

Mound City, called the duck hunting Mecca of the mid-west, is making plans on their annual Ducks Unlimited dinner.

Both of the Federal areas will conduct tours of the Refuge prior to opening The Swan Lake and Fountain Grove areas, which have a population of nearly 100,000 geese and 35,000 ducks at present, will have an open house and tour October 24, from 8:30 a.m. until 4 p.m.

The Squaw Creek Refuge has in addition to daily tours a museum at the area headquarters. The museum houses displays featuring some of the 273 species of birds seen on the area.

Tours are held daily from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. weekdays and 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. on weekends and holidays. The 10 mile drive around the outside perimeter of the refuge affords the viewer a close-up of thousands of migrating waterfowl.

At present there are over 100,000 blue and snow geese, and 20,000 ducks in the Squaw Creek zone.

Hunters, although sometimes failing to bag the limit of waterfowl, never fail to see thousands of ducks and geese. At peak population, Squaw Creek hosts over 200,000 geese, mostly snows, and 125,000 mallards. Swan Lakes' high is around 140,000 geese, mostly Canada, and 80,000 ducks.

DAVIDSON, N.C. (AP) — Bryan Adrian, Davidson College basketball star, is expected to undergo knee surgery this weekend.

That's The Law

Father Ceases Shell Out

By Jack Strauss, LL. B.

Sharon operated on the honor system at college. Her teachers had the honor and she had the system. It inabled her to avoid going to class, living in the dorm as required and permitted her to spend all of her time with lowbrows who were constantly high.

Ultimately, Sharon's well—heeled father got the picture. Viewing his daughter's dirty and ugly appearance and her constantly failing marks, he ordered her home to attend a local college.

Sharon, however, turned a deaf ear to the demand, and her father, in turn, refused to shall out any further loot for her support or for the cost of her continued education. Indignant, Sharon took her father to court.

"A father has no right to force his standards upon a child," she complained to a judge, "and that's what my father's trying to do to me. Since a father has a duty to support a minor child, and to send that child to college if he can afford it, my father can't shirk that oblication."

"She's not only a minor," responded Sharon's father, "she's also a golddigger. She wants me to finance her going to pot and I won't do it and nobody can make me do it."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you require Sharon's father to continue to support her and to pay her education needs?

This is how the judge ruled: NO! he judge held that the father of a minor child is charged with the discipline and support of that child and cannot avoid that obligation merely because they are at odds with each other or even because of the child's delinquent behavior. However, in return for maintenance and support, noted the judge, a father may impose reasonable regulations for his child. And, where the father is not at fault, and the child voluntarily abandon's the parental home to avoid parental discipline and restraint, as in this case, the child forfeits the claim to support. install your television antenna safely!

This is the time of year when many people buy new television sets. And, an increasing number of them are color sets and home entertainment centers.

Installed properly and safely your television set can provide good, low-cost entertainment. Here are four safety tips for your consideration in installing your television antenna:

1
Your outdoor antenna and lead-ins should not cross over power lines. Place them well away from lines to avoid accidential contact, if they should fall or break.

2
Mount your antenna mast on a sturdy structure. Remember the antenna must withstand extreme weather conditions, such as heavy winds.

3
Your antenna mast should be permanently grounded and a lighting arrestor installed on the lead-in.

4
Observe local building codes.

Following these rules, you should avoid most of the hazards of television antenna installation. Also keep in mind that your television antenna does not have to be on the roof. Satisfactory results may be achieved by installing the antenna indoors in your attic. Indoor installation is usually quite satisfactory for reception within 20 to 30 miles of the station.

In 1746, Princeton University in New Jersey was chartered.

In 1883, the former Metropolitan Opera House in New York had its grand opening.

In 1907, a run on a New York bank set off a financial crisis known as the panic of 1907.

In 1942, during World War II, the British air force pounded the Italian port of Genoa.

In 1953, France granted independence to Laos.

Ten years ago: Nine U.S. soldiers with fixed bayonets moved into East Berlin as escorts of an American diplomat who had been turned back by Communist border guards.

Five years ago: President Lyndon B. Johnson was drawing record-breaking crowds on a visit to Australia.

One year ago: Two American generals lost on a flight to Turkey made a safe landing in Soviet Armenia. The Soviets accused them of violating Russian air space.

Court Choice Reaction Good

The President disclosed his choices for the two court vacancies in a television-radio-address to the nation Thursday night. The immediate reaction, in and out of Congress, indicated they may escape bruising battles that have divided the Senate in the recent past.

Powell, 64, a Richmond, Va., trial lawyer, and Rehnquist, 47, an assistant attorney general, were described by Nixon as judicial conservatives like himself. He indicated he expects them to correct what he called a shift in the balance of power in American society against "the peace forces."

He said, however, that "their sole obligation is to the Constitution and the American people and not to the President who appointed them."

Republicans in Congress were generally quick to laud the President's selections. And even such Democratic senators as Edward M. Kennedy of Massachusetts and Birch Bayh of Indiana, who had been blasting Nixon's rumored choices, had no fault to voice.

Bayh said Powell and Rehnquist "appear to be significantly better qualified" than some of the names that had been leaked as under consideration to fill the vacancies created by retirement of John M. Harlan and the late Hugo L. Black.

"It is ironic that the President did not send down these names earlier but rather tried to make these nominations political footballs—sort of a threering circus in which there was a little bit for everybody," Bayh said.

Kennedy said he is pleased "that the President has pulled back from the brink he was approaching," an apparent allusion to the fact neither Powell nor Rehnquist was among the six possible nominees Nixon had submitted for screening to the American Bar Association's Committee on the Federal Judiciary.

Kennedy had called the list "one of the greatest insults to the Supreme Court" in its history.

Bayh led the fights that ended in defeat of Nixon's nominations of two Southern judges, Clement F. Haynsworth Jr. of South Carolina and G. Harrold Carswell of Florida, for an earlier vacancy on the Supreme Court.

Absentee figures were not available and the school may have a high absentee rate in the wake of Thursday's violence.

School officials, law enforcement officials, school board members and members of the black community met Thursday afternoon to air the grievances voiced by the students.

In a joint statement, School Superintendent Sam Harbin and John Scott, president of the National Association for Advancement of Colored People chapter, addressed the community.

"The public schools," Harbin said, "will not allow unauthorized occupation of facilities nor permit any interference with its normal or regular activities. Any student engaged in such activities will face immediate suspension and may suffer ultimate dismissal.

"We urge all parents to help us by sending their children to school. Not attending school not only harms the student, but reflects on the community as well. I would like to reiterate that our program will continue in an organized manner and that school officials will use every means to their disposal to insure this objective."

Scott said:

"We feel that the students do have rights and the school must run in an orderly fashion. We also feel that those who are there to disrupt normal operations should be chastised. We further feel that the system and the school board especially working to capacity to get some of the problems solved and it is only through working with them that we can get this problem solved. It is not a thing that can be solved overnight and right now as some would expect."

Apparently no injuries were suffered during skirmishes yesterday. Police Chief Arthur Bruce said "we tried to get by without this. We waited as long as we could and the students didn't have to have it like this."
